LETTER FROM THE EDITORS

IT'S NOT THE USUAL VINDAGUA, but a look at the dark archives of past Vindaguas inspired us to change with the times. We didn't want to freshen up just the look of the publication, but the entire angle as well. We tried to forget what a yearbook should look like and brainstorm new ways to cover the aspects of Lee. We thought of what makes up this thing we call Lee University, such as diversity, talent, and entertainment, and then searched out ways to convey these concepts. Instead of each two page spread being dedicated to a club or event, we created articles that cover more general topics and last up to ten pages.

Inside you'll see all the basics such as student portraits, professors, clubs and sports, but it may take some browsing to find what you're looking for. And that's what we hope will happen. We hope the seniors look at the freshmen pages and the sedentary look at the sports pages. There's a lot at Lee you might not know about.

The Vindagua is a publication by students and for students. In the basement of Paul Conn Student Union we realized a yearbook can raise some strong emotions. At times when stress was high we had to keep in mind what one staff member said when facing a deadline, "Stay calm; it's just a book."

JOHN GRAY got a late start in photography, but has made up for lost time. He began taking pictures for the Vindagua in the spring of 2000 as a favor for a friend who worked on the staff. John stepped up to be the head photographer for this volume and his commitment and willingness to try new techniques are part of what made this book great.

REBEKAH CARTER faced the hardest year of her college career with student teaching. After spending seven hours with 24 fourth graders, Rebekah came to staff meetings and edited copy tirelessly. She broke ground for the Vindagua by pioneering a new position as copyeditor.

COURTNEY GUTENSCHWAGER is the clown of the yearbook staff. A first-year student at Lee, she took on the responsibilities of Lifestyles editor mid-year when the position was vacated. Her flair for style can be seen in the innovative design of the Lifestyles section.

AMANDA HUTSELL documents her experiences by scrapbooking. She has scrapbooks for missions trips to Jamaica and Brazil, her freshman and sophomore years of college, as well as scrapbooks of her family and friends. She lent her scrapbooking experience to the freshman article on pages 28-30.

TIFFANY GAUSE loves to help people make memories. That's why she joined the yearbook staff as a layout designer. Hailing from Hampton, Virginia, Tiffany has been involved with yearbooks in high school for three years. Tiffany designed the layouts for the Academics section on pages 192-229.

ABERCROMBIE & FITCH, FRIENDS, AND COUNTRY music were symbols of American culture unfamiliar to Sarah Hawthorne. When Sarah was two years old, her family moved from Florida to India. When she was eight, they moved to the Asian country Malaysia.

When Sarah came to Lee in 1998, she was far from home and faced with a foreign culture. Her first friends at Lee were mostly missionary children from other foreign cultures because "most girls were concerned with fashion trends, and they always felt that they needed new, more fashionable clothes. My friends and I grew up on the mission field and were always thankful to actually have clothes."

Sarah was known as "The Malaysian" because she often spoke of Malaysia. She told stories of trekking through Thailand on elephants, staying in tribal villages, and floating down rivers on rafts made of bamboo. "In Malaysia I was able to go places with my classes that students here only read about in textbooks."

At age eight Sarah began reading her parents' political magazines which sparked her interest in politics and human rights. She became active in Amnesty International, and has worked to help persecuted groups around the world. •Story by Susanna R. Custer. •Photo by Johnny Hughes

sarah hawthorne

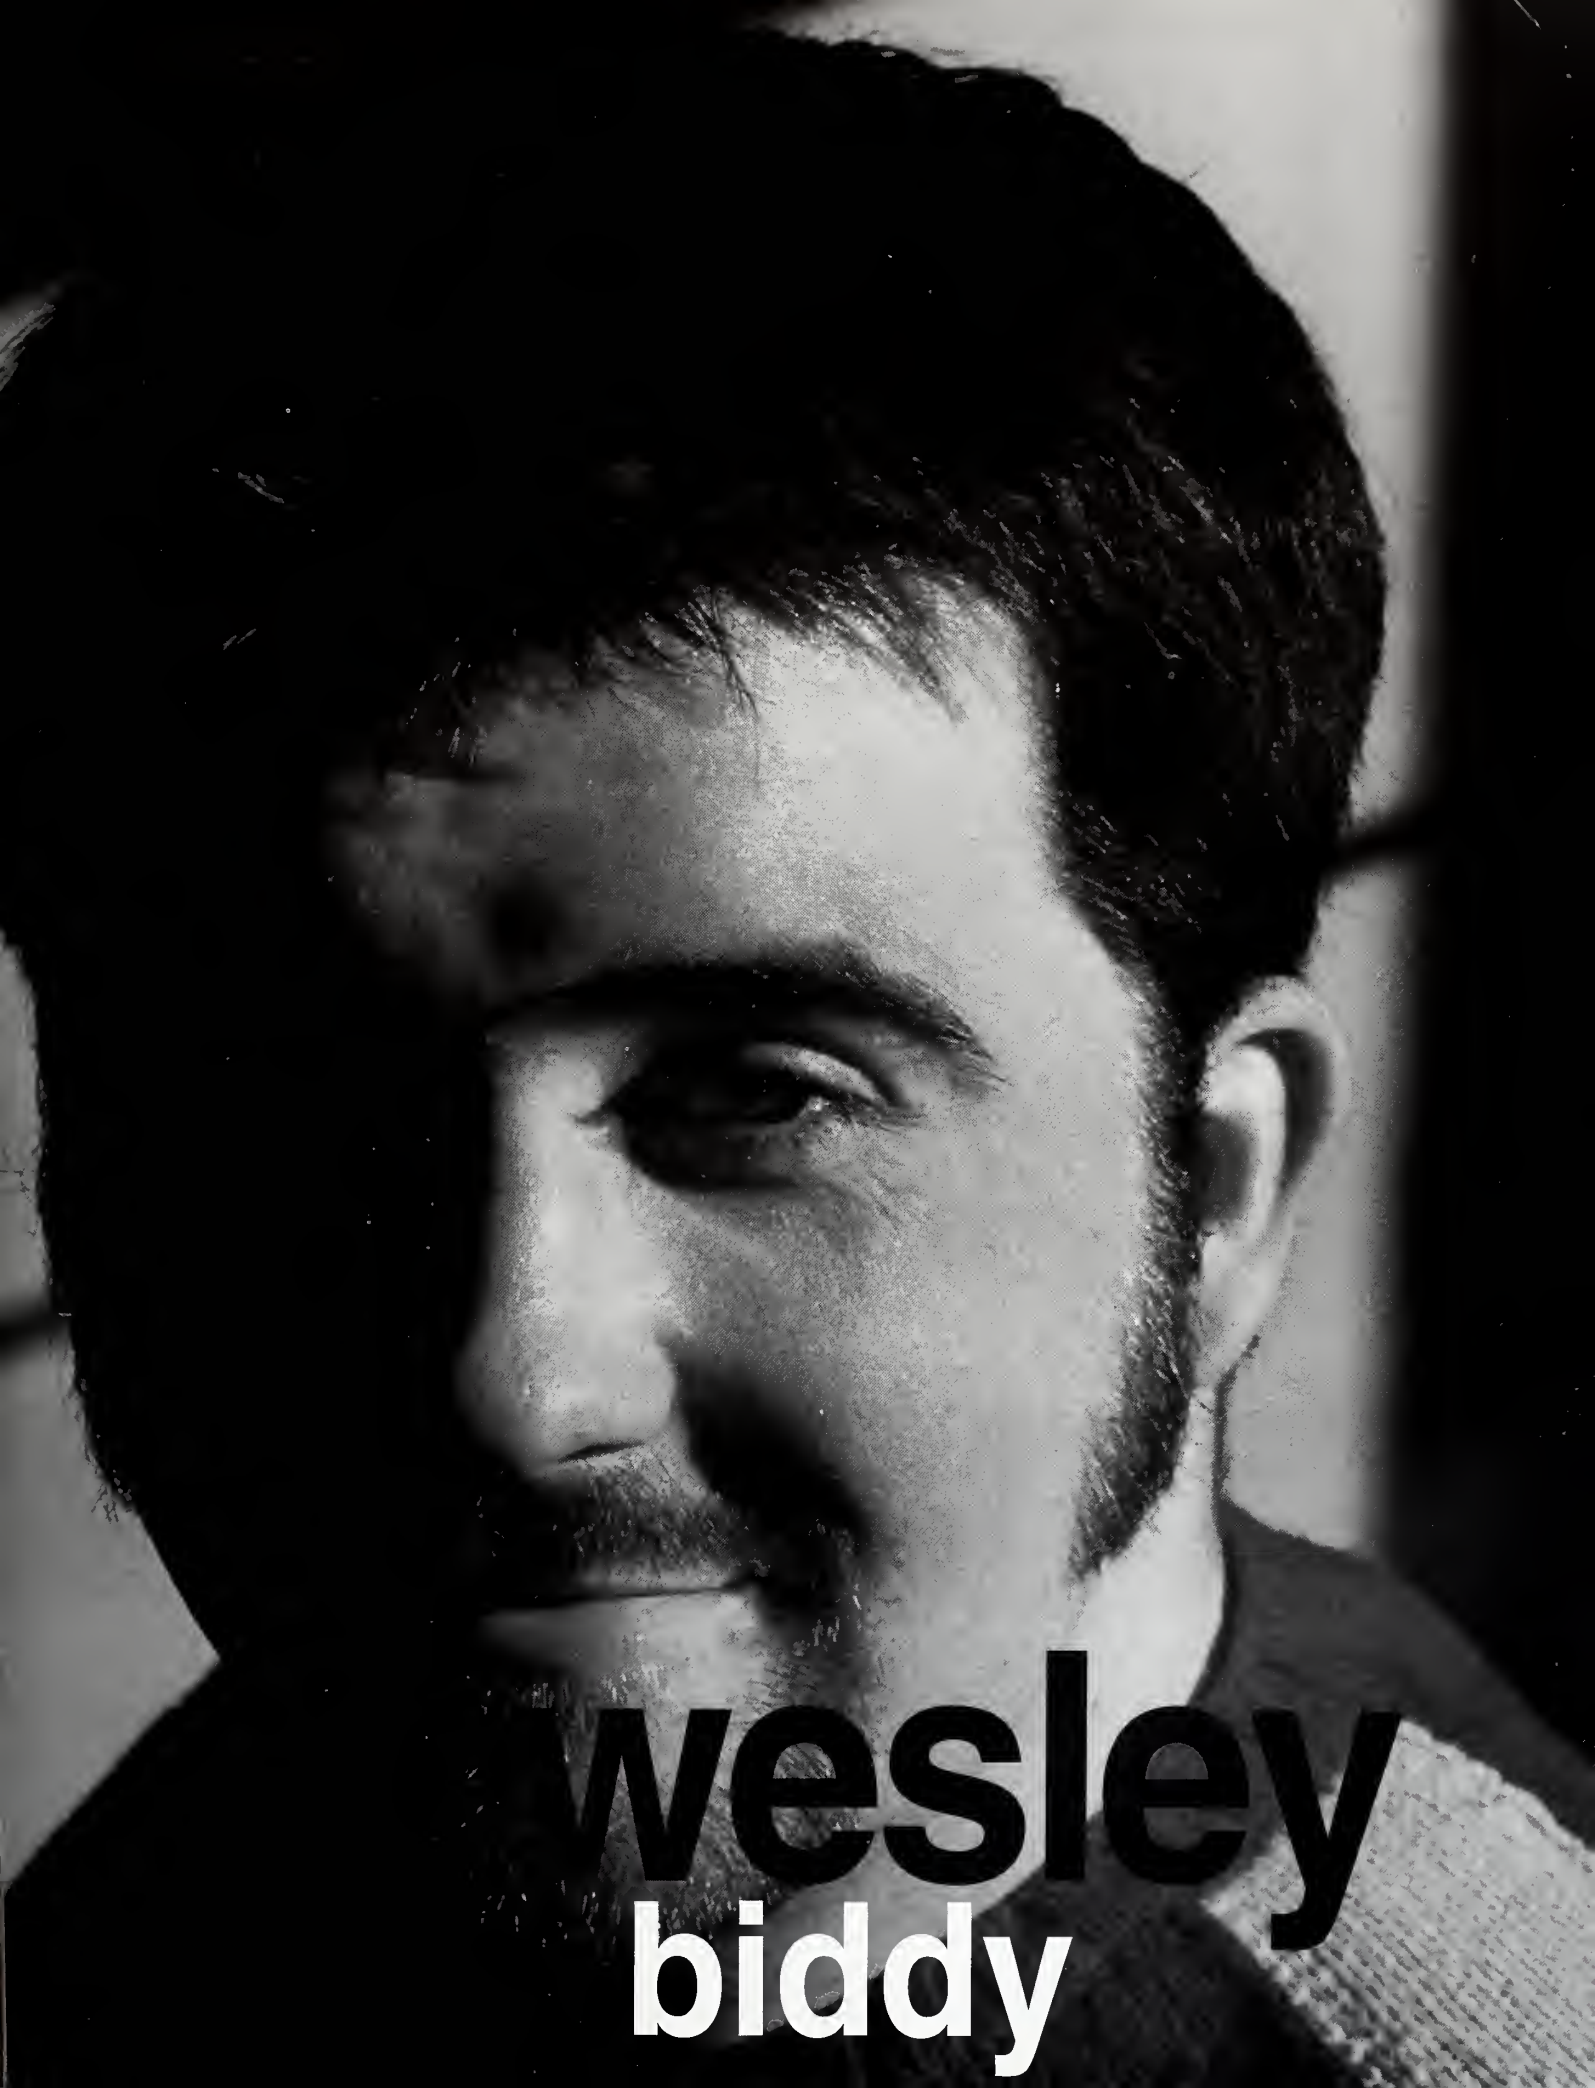

I WOULDN'T MAKE A VERY GOOD POSTER-BOY FOR ANYTHING; I'M TOO FICKLE, AND I can't keep up appearances. I probably wouldn't make much of a martyr, either, but that's not the point. In a car on a winding road on May 5, 1999, I learned a new appreciation for the laws of physics, then spent four months in the hospital recovering from the lesson.

Life is a bizarre thing to happen to a person. Sometimes I think God gave us a sense of humor just so that we can laugh at the strangeness of life and then forget about it for a while instead of being hypnotized and driven mad by it. For example, the thought comes to my mind that since I can only feel and use 10 percent of my body, crucifying my flesh technically should be 90 percent easier to do. People ask what I want to do after college and I respond that, in light of the decreasing demand for exotic dancers and government spies in wheelchairs, I will probably have to settle for teaching. I have made hundreds of paralysis jokes about myself—some better, some more or less vitriolic, than others—and probably the funniest thing about them is how often they have offended my politically-correct able-bodied friends, who sometimes just scold me with a look that says, “you shouldn't talk that way about the handicapped, Wes.”

Some things, however, are simply too hard to laugh at. Aeschylus wrote, “Day by day, hour by hour, pain drips upon the heart as, against our will, and even in our own despite, comes Wisdom from the awful grace of God.” Living Christians could learn a lot from that dead pagan. This experience has certainly taught me a lot. Life is a sea of memories and potential memories, and in it swim misery and delight, despair and hope, boredom and passion. I have learned firsthand that the human heart can experience more sorrow, humiliation, and longing than I ever thought possible. But more importantly, I have learned that the human heart can bear more sorrow, humiliation, and longing than I ever thought possible. What is this supposed to mean?

There have been two distinct moments in my life when I believed, and still believe, that my life was saved by supernatural agency (incidentally, neither of them was the night of the crash), and yet I have to be honest and say that there are times when my religion seems to me to be the most absurd thing imaginable. Sometimes my prayers feel like phone calls to God and I hear this on His answering machine: “Hello, you've reached God. Either I'm not in right now, I don't exist, or I'm screening my calls and you're not someone I want to talk to. Leave a message and I'll contact you when you die.” At other times I think I actually hear Him speak. Most of the time, though, there just seems to be a deep and profound silence on the other end of the phone. And maybe He's trying to teach me something by this. A phrase from somewhere drifts into my thoughts, “Be still, and know that I am God.”

Mother Teresa said, “I know God won't give me more than I can handle. I just wish He didn't trust me so much.” I can identify with this. I believe in miracles and I want one—and I mean real miracles, not that atheistic, watered-down “triumph of the human spirit” crap—but I realize that God may know one or two things that I don't. Leave it to Him to have some mysterious, paradoxical plan that he intends to drop like a hydrogen bomb right in the middle of your bizarre little life. So what am I, what are any of us, left with? This is where the poster-boy gives his inspirational pat answer, but I am not he. I am the suffering, the sarcastic, the lucky, the human one who is fickle and cannot keep up appearances. Instead of a pat answer, what I have is the silence on the other end of the phone, and one of these days I want to see the face behind the silence. And what is this supposed to mean? And what are we left with? Not much, maybe, but maybe enough. A bizarre little life. Silence. Wisdom. The awful, amazing grace of God. •Story by Wes Biddy •Photo by Johnny Hughes •Layout by Shereen Adams

WHEN DR. RICHARD JONES WAS ELEVEN, HE SAW "The Mummy" and was fascinated with the Coptic priests. From then on, he wanted to read more, but few books have been written about Coptic priests. In 1995, Dr. Jones received the Fulbright Full Scholarship to travel to Cairo University in Egypt so he could research Coptic Monasticism for his dissertation. A current member of the American Anthropological Association, Dr. Jones spoke at their conference about his research on Coptic Monasticism.

Dr. Jones came to Lee University because he liked the idea of teaching at a Christian Liberal Arts school. Language Acquisition is his favorite class, but he enjoys teaching classes such as Anthropology Linguistics and Intercultural Studies. He taught English as a second language in the Phillipines in the summer of 2000. His most recent trip was summer 2001 when Dr. Jones lead a group of students to Jordan.

Former Christian Education Director at Hopewell Church of God, Dr. Jones now teaches Sunday School regularly and Family Training Hour at Hopewell Church of God. For 15 years, Dr. Jones had an outreach ministry in the county jail in Michigan and hopes to one day return to prison ministry.

Dr. Jones loves to fish and read his favorite science fiction author, Frank Herbert. He is learning to play the guitar and would like to play "Jumping Jack Flash" on the Conn Center stage. •Story by Marian Daniel. •Photo by Johnny Hughes •Layout by Shereen Adams

susie battle

SUSIE BATTLE HAS ONE OF THE MOST RECOGNIZED AND LOVED voices on the Lee University campus. Her cheerful signature voice mail greeting was simply an accident she made while trying to set up her office shortly after being hired in 1998. She is the department secretary for Communication and the Arts as well as theater manager for student productions. "I was bored," was how Susie explained the greeting, which has made her famous among voice mail users on campus.

Susie's humor and faith come from being raised in a positive home environment. She learned to, "Never react to a situation, choose to respond to the situation." A positive, sensitive, and compassionate heart and attitude grew in Susie as she developed into an adult. Known today as the "Comm Mom," Susie sees her position as a ministry, brightening the day of those who pass her way with a smile, warm greeting, prayer, or a piece of candy. "The students let me minister to them." Always singing, offering a word of encouragement, and smiling, Susie is one of the most cherished and loved parts of the Communication department.

Not only is Susie part of the staff at Lee, she is a student and will be graduating in July 2001 with a Bachelor of Arts in Communication with an emphasis in Public Relations and Advertising. Susie will "keep working here until the Lord takes me somewhere else." Susie is also a member of the flag football intramural team known as F.A.S.T (Faculty and Staff team), which is the only faculty team in the intramural league.

Susie is active in the Cleveland community as president of the Westmore Church of God Choir, and she teaches piano lessons. Mother to three married children and grandmother to Samuel Kristian are roles Susie loves.

Her child-like faith inspires those who know her. Susie's favorite verse, Philippians 4:13, "I can do all things through Christ who strengthens me," is a reflection of the attitude that flows from her to those with whom she has the smallest contact. •Story by Jennifer Lister •Photo by Johnny Hughes •Layout by Shereen Adams

frances arrington

MRS. FRANCES ARRINGTON, DIRECTOR OF THE Pentecostal Resource Center (PRC), came to Lee in 1949 as a college freshman and worked in the library as a student worker until 1951. Since her first day on the job, the library has undergone considerable change. "We had a manual typewriter, a copy machine, a microfilm reader and a card catalog when I started." Today the PRC is rife with the latest technology in electronic media software and Internet research applications. "It really has been a challenge to keep up with all the formats of information that have developed."

Mrs. Arrington has served as the Director of the Lee Memorial Library and later the PRC for 39 years. "It's interesting to see the different generations come through Lee and all the changes." Mrs. Arrington values her interaction with students and faculty. She enjoys the opportunity to work with other Christian professionals who have similar goals. "I enjoy contact with students...and helping people access information."

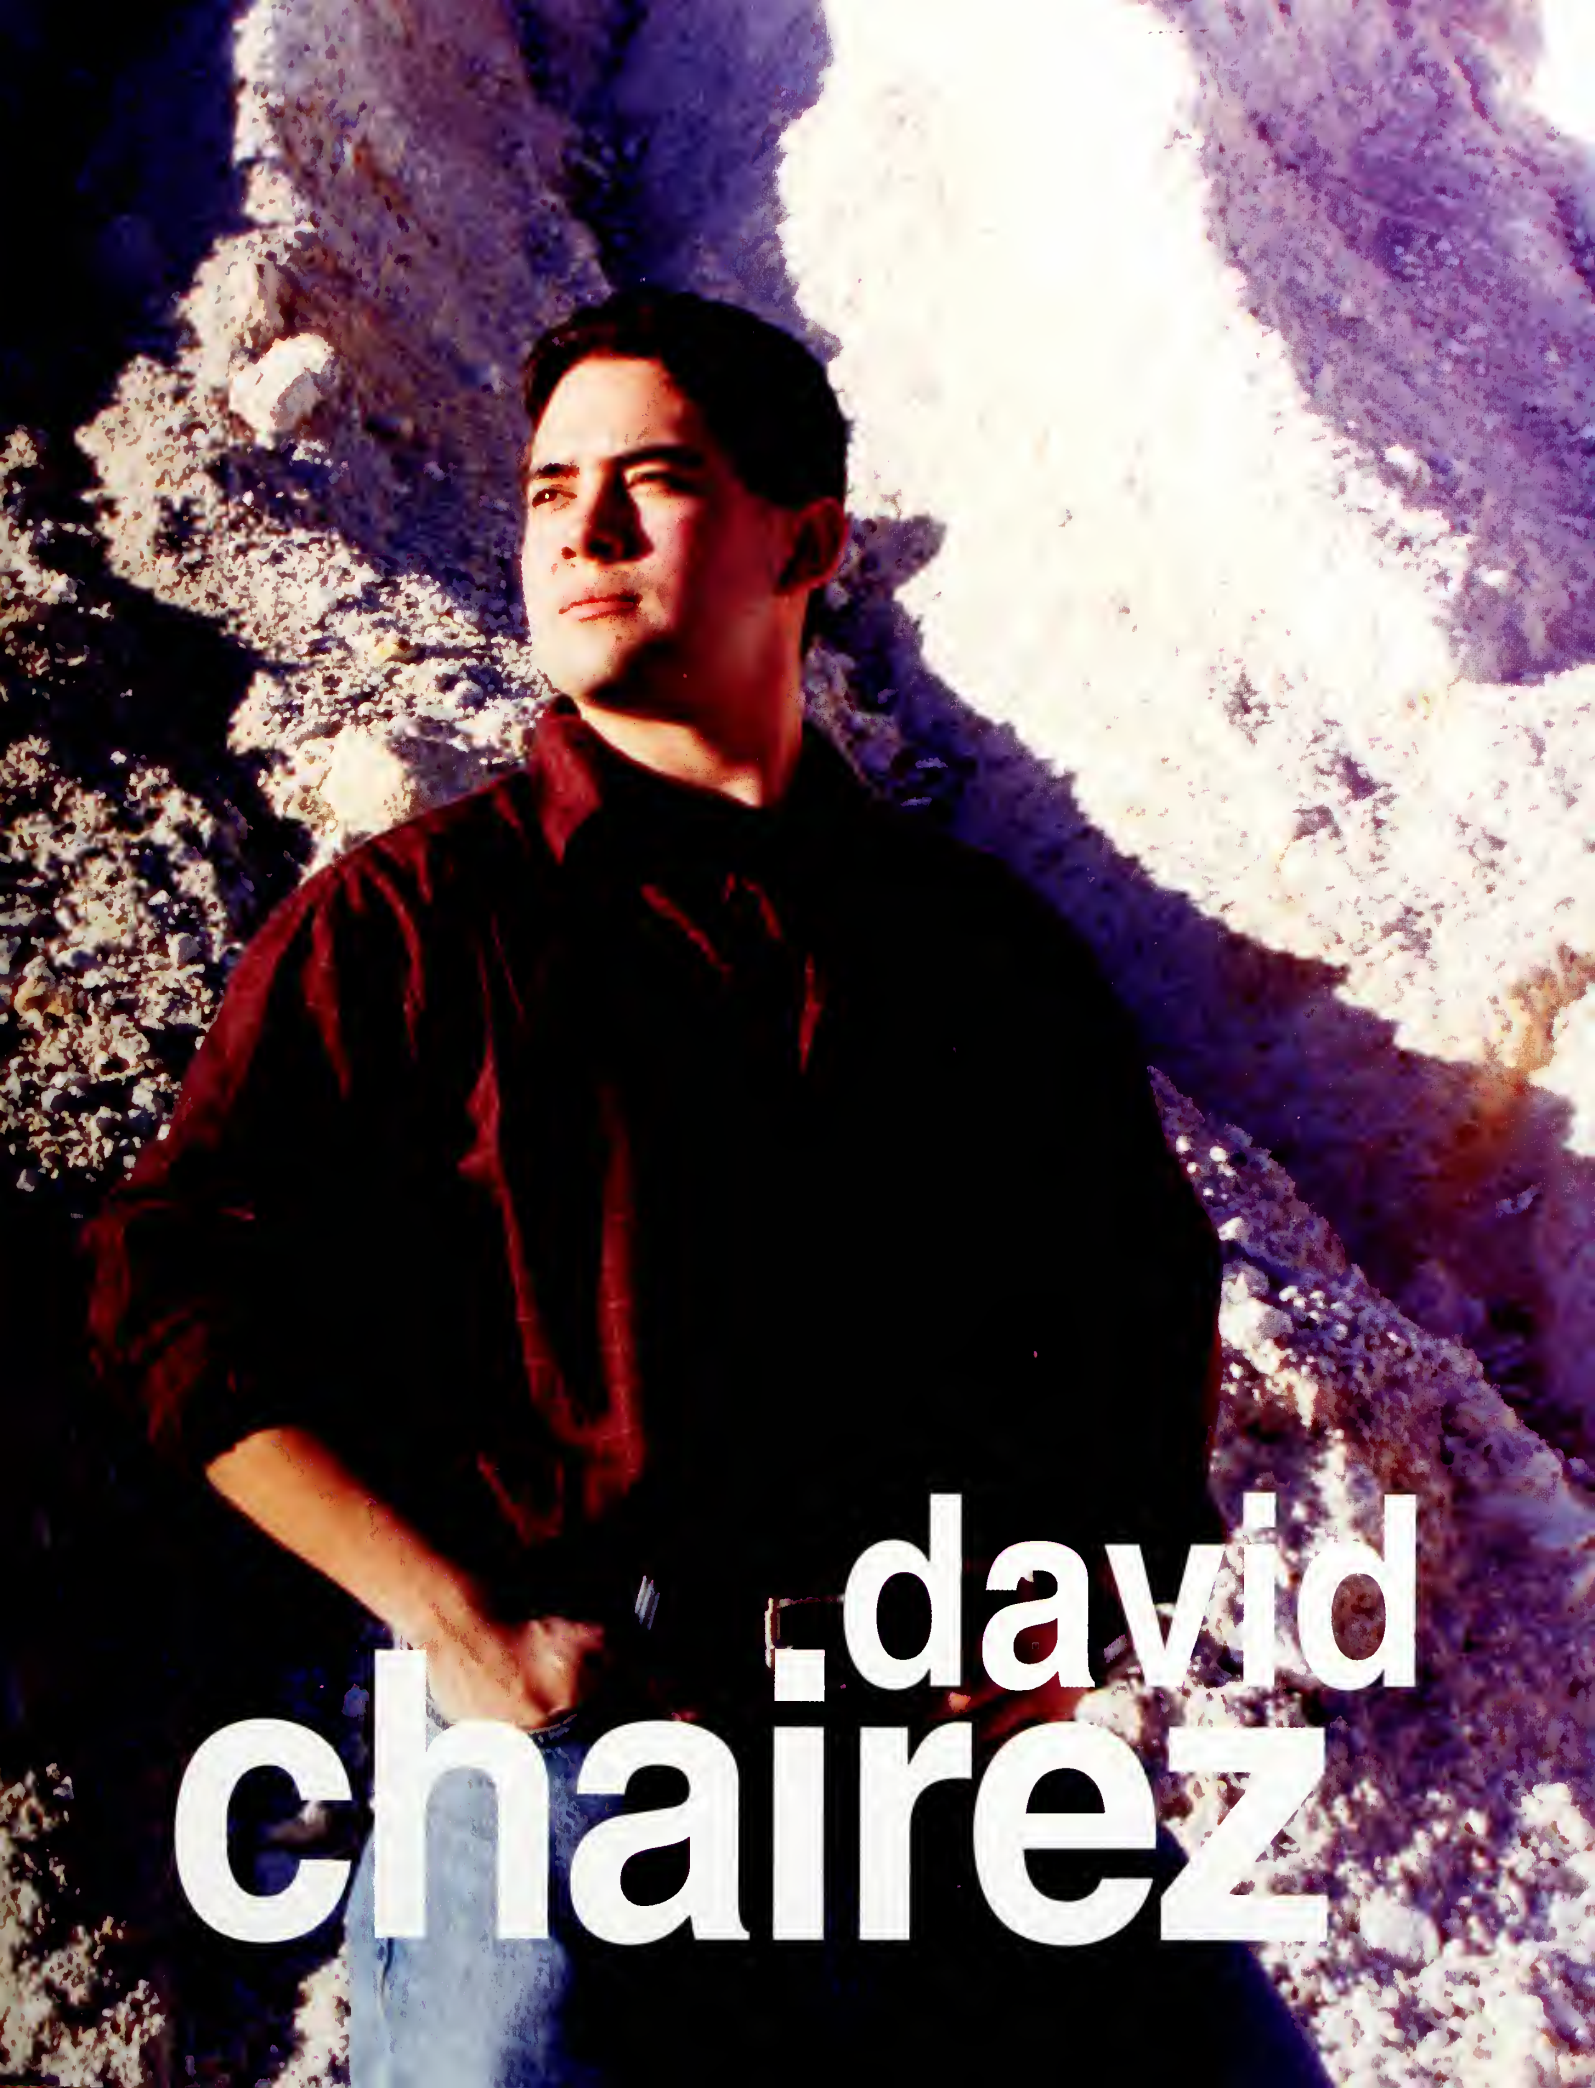

Barbara McCullough, a colleague of Mrs. Arrington's for more than 30 years, describes Mrs. Arrington as "fully dedicated to her job; she has always been ready to give extra in time and energy when it was required. The expertise and the inside knowledge that she has gained from living and growing with the library for so long will not be easily replaced." •Story by Seth Hankee •Photo by Johnny Hughes •Layout by Shereen Adams

DYNAMIC. DRIVEN. DESTINED. THESE ADJECTIVES DESCRIBE the attitude of a man who involves himself in every facet of the Lee experience. Having arrived at Lee as a Centennial Scholar for the 1999-2000 school year, David Chairez will perhaps be Lee University's first to have a quadruple major. A nineteen year old senior, David has only had four semesters—that's semesters — of university education. The four programs David has pursued are Pastoral Ministries, Bible and Theology, Spanish Education, and English Education. "I understand that I may not get to graduate with degrees in each of these majors. Nevertheless, I'm not in it for the diploma so much as for the knowledge and experience."

David's post-collegiate plans demonstrate the same level of intense commitment. "It may sound trite or superspiritual, but the truth is that I want to live and die and live again as a man after God's own heart." Keeping with that philosophy, David would like to pastor, teach, and to establish a leadership training center to help people integrate their Christian faith with their professions.

David believes in service, giving of one's self, and exhibiting effective leadership. Contributing to the community as an active youth leader at North Cleveland Church of God, David co-directed the Youth Drama Ministry, 'N Him. He further served with other campus organizations, most notably as an Resident Assistant in Hicks Hall. "Being an RA has proven to be one of the most challenging and most rewarding endeavors of my life...I learn so much from being with the guys and listening to their stories, because everybody has a story to tell which is well worth the audience."

David attributes his success to his family, professors, and ultimately God. "I'm big on hope, not the kind of wishful hoping that disappears with a strong wind. The hope that's something more than faith, something more than even believing without seeing, something that knows God can do and will do what He says. My parents have cultivated this never-say-die hope in my life. I've also been blessed to have some unbelievable teachers, especially here at Lee, who have inspired and motivated me to be the best scholar, minister, and Christian that I can be." •Story by Marian Daniel •Photo by Johnny Hughes •Layout by Shereen Adams

THOUGH FROM A SMALL TOWN in Ohio, Aimee Fisher is very much a metropolitan woman. She spent a semester in Washington D.C. and is chairperson of the Student Leadership Council. Aimee has a passion for travel and yearning for new culture. "I have such a desire to see places and do things, eat foods I have never eaten, travel to places I have never been, and try my hand at professions beyond my wildest dreams!"

Aimee loves life in the big city. "When I lived in D.C., I would walk to work and pass the Supreme Court and the Library of Congress surrounded by famous monuments, stand in an elevator with a congressman, and then sit in a hearing next to Senator Ted Kennedy!" Aimee also went to England and Scotland with Dr. Robert Barnett's group. "I was so fascinated by the beautiful land and the interesting people."

Someday, Aimee sees herself in a big city soaking up life and enjoying the simplest things. She wants to spend time with her family, shop for pottery, learn about history, and hopefully be a part of history on Capitol Hill someday. With ambitions like Aimee's, one day she will be on her way to Capitol Hill and be a metropolitan woman of influence and distinction.

FROM THE APPALACHIANS TO JAPAN, Dr. Donald Bowdle's ministry and career have spanned almost as many countries as years. As professor, minister, and author, Dr. Bowdle has visited 40 countries since coming to Lee 39 years ago. "Wherever I have gone to minister, I have tried to spend extra time to take in the culture."

Dr. Bowdle's travels keep him busy such as in 1999, one day after ministering in Peru, he journeyed to Germany to teach students on the book of Hebrews. He taught at a seminary in South Korea, and used this opportunity to visit other parts of Asia, including China and Hong Kong. "I really have the passion to promote in my ministry the concept of the body of Christ. The body of Christ is truly universal."

Dr. Bowdle likes a casual learning atmosphere for students, like his New Testament Greek classes at Lee. "I think you learn a language better that way. I tell my students that nobody needs to be afraid of mistakes; we are all learning together."

Dr. Bowdle has authored and edited several books, including Redemption Accomplished and Applied and The Promise and the Power. Two of his former students, Drs. Terry Cross and Emerson Powery, dedicated a book in his honor that housed a collection of essays on Pentecostalism called The Spirit and the Mind: Essays in Informed Pentecostalism.

He cited this as a capstone for his 39 years of teaching. Dr. Bowdle has successfully combined ministry and scholarship during his career to provide an example for Lee students to follow.

AT THREE YEARS OLD, CHRISTOPHER Pylant was diagnosed with an astrocytoma brain tumor so severe doctors believed he might not live long. This tumor could have caused him to lose the ability to walk and talk. Many prayed for Chris. After numerous tests and several surgeries, doctors removed the brain tumor. At the time, he was the only person to have survived this type of tumor. His teacher said he would never make it past the third grade, but Chris graduated from high school with a 3.8 GPA.

At age four, Chris had a personal experience with God which led him to revelations about his future. He felt the call to ministry and knew God would lead him to Lee University. Chris believes that he is "specifically called into the healing ministry."

The thing he loves most about Lee is that it is a Christian-based campus. Being a freshman, Chris has not had the chance to experience all he plans to do during his college career. When he is not busy singing music by Elvis, he enjoys being involved in the campus ministry Pioneers for Christ.

Chris' goals for Lee are to be an influence to people and to be of service to his peers. He would also like to "change the dancing rule." He believes he will be of good service to people because he considers himself "an honest, loyal individual." Chris' dream is to go into full-time healing ministry and "have at least four or five kids." Chris is patiently waiting on the Lord to lead him, and he is being of service to others until he is completely prepared for his future in the ministry. •Story by Jennifer L. People came from all over the country in the 1960s to the artistic and cultural Mecca in Boulder, Colorado—many of them to experience personal growth and free expression. This is the city where Dr. Barnett grew up, and he was exposed to many people with progressive ideas. This kind of cultural awareness helped to shape Dr. Barnett into the man he is.

Dr. Barnett did not always aspire to be a college professor. He tried several less conventional professions before ending up as a history professor. For awhile he supported himself playing golf, toured as part of a rock-and-roll band, and was once in the record business. His musical career ended when he had a “revelation.” One night, while his wife and daughter watched him play at a Bandito biker gang convention, the bikers got out of hand. Dr. Barnett decided there was a better way to raise his family.

He worked towards his undergraduate degree in West Texas where he became involved in the record business. One day, a friend took him to lunch to celebrate a new promotion. Dr. Barnett dropped the bomb that he was not satisfied with his job. His friend’s suggestion of graduate school sparked Dr. Barnett’s curiosity. That day he took the first steps to becoming a professor by signing up to take the Graduate School Admission Test. Later, he enrolled at Texas Tech University.

While Dr. Barnett was looking for a teaching job in the 1980s, he was invited to visit Tennessee Wesleyan College. He was skeptical about Tennessee, thinking it might still be locked in the Civil War. Yet when he visited the school he fell in love with it. Small town Athens reminded him of Mayberry. He asked God to give him a sign if he should take the job. He walked across the street, turned the corner, and saw ... a chicken in the road. As a sign, it was quirky, but it did the job for Dr. Barnett. He moved to Athens and taught at Tennessee Wesleyan for seven years.

Since coming to Lee in 1995, Dr. Barnett has gained a reputation as one of the university’s most respected professors. Many students continue to give public tribute to Dr. Barnett not just as a professor, but as a good friend, trusted advisor, strong leader, role model, and someone who is always there for his students. Dr. Barnett was the recipient of the Excellence in Advising Award in 1998. He’s come a long way since the chicken in the road. •Story by Mark A. Wilson

PAUL CONN

AFTER SUNDAY NIGHT CHAPEL ON OCTOBER 15, 2000, eight days ahead of schedule, the Paul Conn Student Union opened for the first time. "It's the fulfillment of a long, long dream," Dr. Conn told students at the end of chapel. "I have my office...this building is for you!"

Students swarmed the new building with excitement and exclamations of delight and surprise. "I want to thank Dr. Conn for giving us such a beautiful building," said junior Christina Pacholik. "He's a wonderful, humble, gentle, kind man, and we all appreciate and love him." Not only did the new building include a lounge area and food court featuring Chick-Fil-A, Pizza Hut, and Selona Grill, but it also housed the expanded Follett Campus Bookstore, post office, commuter lounge, computer labs, student publication offices, meeting rooms, and a student services suite housing the offices of Student Development, Residential Life, Commuter and Nontraditional Student Services, and the Student Leadership Council.

"Since almost day one of my arrival 13 years ago, Dr. Conn has bemoaned the fact that we did not have adequate space for the bookstore, the post office, student publications and general hanging out," said Dr. Tilley, Vice President of Student Life.

STUDENT UNION

Dr. Carolyn Dirksen, Vice President of Academic Affairs, pointed out that Dr. Conn had always had the students in mind. His presidency oversaw the building of the Devos Recreation Center and Devos Tennis Courts, the Ped Mall, and the Dixon Center for staging a variety of performances.

CELEBRATING

On October 26, 2000, the entire Lee University campus came together to show corporate appreciation for the Paul Conn Student Union Building at the "Thank You Dr. Conn Party." It was a wonderful time to celebrate the accomplishments that Dr. Conn had made during his presidency.

A human wall of GST students guided Dr. and Mrs. Conn into the Student Union. Dr. and Mrs. Conn were given a student-led tour of the new building. The tour consisted of 12 "stops" where different campus groups of about 20 representative students presented Dr. Conn with unique gifts of appreciation.

TOP: Students surround Dr. and Mrs. Conn as they celebrate the opening of the Student Union building. Participating were Randy Sheeks, 1987; Karen Bennett, 1988; Cheryl Mize Ogle, 1989; Kevin Christian, 1990; Neal Coomer, 1991; Celesxte Sisco Brown, 1992; Nadine Blair, 1992; Stephanie Culverhouse Guess, 1993; Eric Duncan, 1994; David Cannon, 1995; Jeff Black, 1996; Kara Freeman Huey, 1997; Rhea Horton Marshall, 1998; Emil Brown, 1999; Kerri Simmons, 2000; Desha Conn, 2001; Jeff Lobb, 2002; Robert Johnson, 2003; Jill Rice, 2004.

Following the tour, the Festival Choir performed. A 14-bell salute was also given in honor of Dr. Conn's 14 years as president of Lee University. A dessert party for the entire student body ended the evening of appreciation.

DEDICATING

The new building was dedicated and the red ribbon cut at a formal ceremony with the Conn family, Lee students, and Alumni. Beginning with the class of 1987 and going up to the class of 2004, a representative was chosen to be present on the steps during the ceremony. All the representatives, along with Dr. Conn, cut the ribbon at the same time to symbolize the close relationships between the President, Faculty, Staff, and students at Lee. It was a proud moment indeed for the University.

MATTERS OF THE HEART

FROM FRIENDSHIP TO LIFELONG COMMITMENT,
MEN AND WOMEN LEARN TO RELATE.

IN ADDITION TO BEING AN academically and spiritually inclined institution, Lee was also a marriage preparation camp. While some students came to college open about wanting to find a mate for life, others denied ever wanting to find that relationship at Lee. Junior Rachel Land stated, "When I came to Lee, I honestly did not want to find my future husband; I just wanted to find a lot of guy friends. People here make such a big deal about dating and marriage when they should just trust in God to bring the right one at the right time."

Another junior, Anna Adams, said, "I think some of the closest relationships can be formed within a Christian community such as Lee. God brings people here for a specific purpose, and sometimes a part of that is uniting two people for life."

There were plenty of opportunities to meet members of the opposite sex. Senior Seth Hankee said, "The best ways to meet people is through mutual friends." People could be found networking everywhere from in the hall after class to the post office. An athletic event was an option for those who were outgoing. Rachel Land suggested, "Go to concerts at the house. It's a smaller atmosphere and automatic conversation starter. It's relaxed; you can drink coffee and sit and be comfortable. It's not intimidating or imposing." The Student Leadership Council also sponsored campus-wide events throughout the year such as post chapel mixers.

Lee was not only the home to a vast single population. Those already married folks fulfilled just as important a position on campus by being models of solid commitment. Shereen

Adams summed up her views as a married student in college. She said, "I've often been asked how I am able to handle being a student and wife at the same time. I really do not think it is that different than being a single person in search of a mate. But instead of spending my time scouting out the prospects, I invest my time in our relationship."

For all the people who complained about the complications involved in dividing the time between the significant other and the academic arena, try adding children into the picture! Matters such as missing classes due to a babysitter cancellation or finding crayon graffiti on the cover of a new textbook were just a few obstacles that often had to be dealt with on a daily basis.

For those who were married or parents, the Family Life Committee sponsored activities such as the couples retreat to Gatlinburg and the Christmas Banquet. Wives gathered once a month at Oneta Smith's house for Sisters in Sharing. The women ate together and talked about everything from pregnancy to the best place to buy furniture.

No matter what the particular stage in life one was at with regards to dating, marriage, and parenting, Lee had a spot for everyone.

IN THE SPIRIT

OF LEE UNIVERSITY

asked them why they came to this university. The overwhelming majority said they chose Lee because of its Christian environment. A large part of the Christian environment here was the quality of spiritual life on campus. The center piece of that spiritual life was chapel.

Chapel offered students a wide variety of options, from traditional to contemporary. Students heard from an amazingly diverse group of speakers including pastors, evangelists, Christian artists, and academics. Other chapels highlighted the work of God in students' lives through testimony, drama, or music.

Fall and Spring Convocations were times of examination and renewal. Raymond Culpeper, senior pastor at the Metropolitan Church of God in Birmingham, Alabama, was guest speaker for the evening services during the fall semester. Loran Livingston, senior pastor of Central Church of God in Charlotte, North Carolina, spoke for the spring Convocation services.

The office of Student Life continued offering a different angle on some chapel services with their emphasis on Belief and Behavior. These popular services dealt with hot and controversial topics such as sexual addiction, homosexuality, elections, and order in worship.

A smaller but wildly popular venue, Alternative Squared Chapel, drew hundreds of students hungry for a more intimate, intensely concentrated worship experience. The new House was opened for business midway through the fall semester and "played" to capacity crowds.

All these chapel options helped make Lee the unique spiritual place it has always been. •Story from staff reports •Layout by Shereen Adams

SERVING OTHERS

FROM CAMPUS-WIDE SERVICE DAY TO THE BREAD MINISTRY, LEE STUDENTS WERE COMMITTED TO IMPROVING THE COMMUNITY.

DIVERSITY...

ENTERING COLLEGE was a strange and new experience for everyone. But it was especially new and strange for those students who came from other countries. In all the hustle and bustle of classes and the daily stress of life, it became very important not to forget the valued customs and traditions of their respective cultures. Students from all around the world contributed spice and flavor to the campus through organizations such as Umoja, Familia Unida, and International Student Fellowship.

UMOJA

Umoja was the black student association chartered in September of 1999. The name Umoja means "unity," and their motto is "one God, one people, and one community." The organization found many ways to "edify and inform the student body about black culture, retain and recruit black students, reach out to the community to promote social and spiritual growth, promote cultural change on campus, and also aid in the unification of all students." Events sponsored by the association included "Showtime at the Apollo" and the Martin Luther King, Jr., Celebration.

INTERNATIONAL STUDENT FELLOWSHIP

International Student Fellowship (ISF) was the organization where people from different countries came together under a common purpose: sharing with people of different cultures, combining unique and special God-given gifts, and serving God through community service. Events such as praise and worship nights with guest speakers, a Valentine's dinner, Pajama party, officer auction night, and banquets were just a few spectacular events put on by ISF.

FAMILIA UNIDA

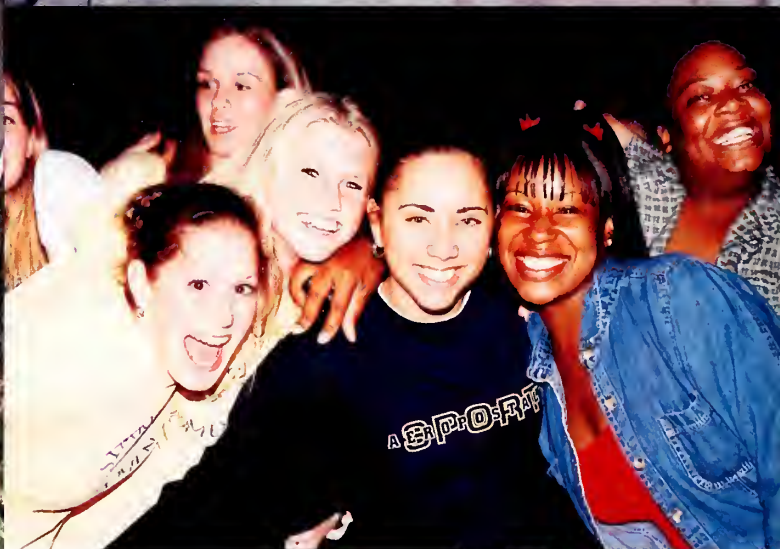

Familia Unida represented the Hispanic culture on campus. Their name means "united family" because each member possessed membership in the family of God. One of the most popular and enjoyable events sponsored by Familia Unida was "Salsa in the Park." At this Spanish culture night, participants enjoyed rhythmic Spanish dances, the chili eating game, and, of course, the pinata contest.

COOKING, PREENING,

College Life

LIVING INDEPENDENTLY IS AN ADVENTURE.

CAMPING, SLEEPING, BONDING — ASPECTS OF COLLEGE LIFE

It was common knowledge that college life consisted of more than academic study. Whether the traditional resident in a dorm room, or an off-campus dweller, most time was spent doing ANYTHING but sitting in a classroom.

ON CAMPUS HOUSING

Life in a dorm was at times comparable to legal imprisonment in the modern free world. Curfew checks, room checks, and weekend sign out sheets were a few ways to track and monitor the incoming freshmen. Amanda Hutsell, who resided in Sharp-Davis Hall for two years, said, "I am convinced that the cinder block and fluorescent light decorations, which coincidentally mirror those seen in interrogation scenes in movies, prompt a person to share more about his or her life than would be deemed acceptable in the comfortable conditions of a spacious room with soft lighting." An anonymous resident of Keeble said entering her apartment shared by her less than compulsively clean roommates was comparable to "venturing into a den of nastiness."

HEALTH & BEAUTY, SINGING & STRUMMING,

OFF CAMPUS HOUSING

On the other hand, living off campus, though thought to be the better option, was not always so. Parking for commuters was difficult to find on a campus with so many residents having cars. But personal space and not living at Lee 24 hours a day were definite benefits.

RESIDENTIAL LIFE STAFF

The residential life staff played a vital role in on campus housing. The residential directors, residential director assistants, and the residential assistants, invested themselves in the selfless job of improving their residents' lives. Undertaking the task of nurturers, entertainers, counselors, and disciplinarians, they still left time to plan activities such as monthly birthday parties and Dorm Wars.

Unfortunately, some residents viewed the Resident Directors as tyrants who called midnight meetings about noise control or who neglected the curfew violation excuse of "I was stuck in traffic." But the reality was that the Residential Life Staff spent countless hours putting the needs of others above their own and just generally keeping peace in the dorm settings.

Though college life had drawbacks, memories were created, lifelong friendships were formed, and the full experience of college life gained was priceless.

A mass of jerseys adorned with colored Greek letters and nicknames could be found swarming the campus proclaiming the alliances students had with an organization. These organizations were an opportunity for an enhanced social life, but the ten social service clubs held true to their origins as clubs established to serve the community and campus.

UPSILON XI: CHARTERED SEPTEMBER 26, 1962

The men of Upsilon Xi, who donned jerseys of black and grey, were responsible for events that helped to break the ice for those adjusting to campus life. The annual Block Party held in the fall provided an opportunity for freshmen to come together and intermingle for a few hours during that first week of school. Sadie Hawkins, held at Dr. O'Bannon's farm, gave girls the chance to throw caution to the wind and ask out that special someone on whom she had her eyes. The organization also volunteered to help landscape the turf around Arnold Elementary. In regard to the goal of Upsilon, president Zac Roland said, "In Upsilon we tried to focus on the service part of our club. We were involved in a number of things not just on campus, but in our community. The social part was also important, not only within our club, but how we portrayed ourselves to everyone on campus and in the community." The active involvement of Upsilon in the community and on campus proved that Upsilon was dedicated to providing an environment of contentment for those not only within the club, but those outside of the club as well.

ALPHA GAMMA CHI: CHARTERED FALL 1963

Burgundy and grey adorned the backs of the men to whom the credit goes for planning and executing several entertaining operations. Their motto, "The Christian gentlemen and the Christian scholar to the greater glory of God," was exemplified in several of their events. Chi cruise, held in Chattanooga on the Southern Belle Riverboat, provided an evening of civilized entertainment, mirroring the image of an organization of gentlemen. The club's involvement with both Taylor and Prospect Elementary stressed their emphasis on academics. Former Chi member and teacher at Prospect Elementary, Steve Montgomery, was their alumnus of the year, and former member Ken Philips was principal of Taylor Elementary. Chi demonstrated the longevity of their brotherhood in their willingness to lend a helping hand to those in need, including former Chi guys. The generosity of the members given to those less fortunate was evident in the wood chop that the club participated in. The men of Alpha Gamma Chi held true to their motto by serving the community and the campus in both academic and gentlemanly aspects.

DELTA ZETA TAU:
CHARTERED IN 1965

The ladies dressed in red and white represented Delta Zeta Tau. DZT allowed members of the organization and outside members of the student body to get plugged into the social scene at Lee. The Harvest Hoedown, at which members of the student body received the chance to play games and learn different country line dancing steps, was their big event for the campus. Their motto, "We seek to serve," was further encouraged by the Panty Raid, held to obtain underwear for those at a women's shelter, and by their commitment to the Delta Project at Arnold Elementary. The service given by the ladies of DZT has provided lifelong memories. April Wiechmann, upon reflection of her involvement with DZT said, "DZT has given me a chance to really get plugged in to the social scene at Lee. DZT has also allowed me to make lasting friendships. Some of the greatest memories I will carry from Lee are the times I have spent with DZT. The Delta Project at Arnold Elementary School has allowed DZT to get plugged in to the community and has also been an encouragement to the members to be a positive influence on the students at Arnold Elementary."

SIGMA NU SIGMA: CHARTERED MARCH 5, 1966

Blue is a comforting color, or so psychologists say. The ladies of Sigma Nu Sigma, who coincidentally have club colors of royal blue and white, reinforced this concept by providing the campus with refreshing activities. Their motto of "Charity Never Faileth" was displayed in the events that the organization hosted. The Welcome Back Party helped ease returning students and freshmen back into the groove of classroom work after a summer free from traditional scholastic monotony. The Hawaiian Luau and Whose Line is it Anyway? presented the chance for an evening of refreshment. Their attitude of charity was further emphasized by their nursing home visits to Wellington Nursing Home. Staci Brown commented on the things she learned in Sigma when she said, "Being in Sigma has been a learning experience above anything else. I've learned the value of friendship, the importance of trust, and that you can't please everyone, but it's been an experience that I will always treasure and never forget."

PI KAPPA PI: CHARTERED FALL 1987

John Donne's meditation 17 says, "No man is an island entire unto itself. Every man is a piece of the continent, part of the main. Any man's death diminishes us, for we are involved in mankind." This idea was embodied by the men beneath the green and khaki jerseys. Their desire to promote unity was evident in the relaxed atmosphere of the events provided by the organization. The Welcome Back Party and Oktoberfest allowed members of the student body to come out for an evening of unifying entertainment. Pi prides itself on providing entertainment solely for the benefit of the campus; all of their events are free of charge to all students. A statement by President Josh Chumley exemplified the goal of Pi, "We give back to the campus, we're not all about ourselves. We're more of a friendly group of guys that hold Christ at the center of our club, but we also know how to have fun and live up to being the mighty men of Pi Kappa Pi." Psalm 133:1 summed the club goals up by saying, "Behold how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity."

EPSILON LAMBDA PHI: CHARTERED JANUARY 1988

Royalty, or at least the concept, was evident in the ladies of Epsilon Lambda Phi. The desire to become one in Christ (the King of Kings) was the focus of the organization dressed in purple and white. The club staged Masquerade on the Mall, which provided an evening of laughter and entertainment along the Pedestrian Mall. Their participation with Angel Tree and their first annual leadership conference demonstrated their commitment to becoming Christ-like. Kjerstin O'Leary commented on the various aspects of Epsilon when she remarked, "Not only has Epsilon given years of treasured memories and invaluable friendships, but it has also given me the experience of leadership and teamwork which will be essential to my future career." Kjerstin also said of Epsilon, "[Epsilon] is an established organization founded on academic excellence, a concern for community, and a desire to serve the Lord at all costs."

THETA DELTA KAPPA: CHARTERED APRIL 22, 1992

"After going through induction, we formed a special bond with the other brothers. We had many sacred traditions that kept the Brotherhood strong. It was an awesome feeling to know that you always had thirty other brothers to hang out with and to pray for you when you were down." Chris Bovinet concisely described the philosophy behind the navy blue and grey jerseys worn by the men of Theta Delta Kappa. The closeness between the members of Theta was evident in the activities within their club and in those deeds done for the community and campus. "Eternally serving Christ; Unified through Christian Brotherhood," was the motto upheld by the club not only in ideal, but also in their activities. Feeding the Homeless in Chattanooga and Atlanta, working with the Cleveland Boys and Girls Club and Backyard ministries were events that members of Theta participated in, revealing their zeal for serving Christ.

KAPPA PSI NU: CHARTERED DECEMBER 1992

Unconditional love was a concept that was considered by the ladies of Kappa Psi Nu to be a foundational element of their organization. The genuine love of the gold and winter white ladies was demonstrated in their community service activities. Visiting the residents of North Cleveland Towers and having Bible studies there and taking the residents out to eat each semester was a highlight of their service. In addition to providing wholesome love for the residents of the Towers, the club also demonstrated an attitude of humility by cleaning and repairing the Boys and Girls Club Retreat Center. Sponsor Kay McDaniel commented on the love of Kappa when she said, "The ladies' leading endeavor was to maintain focus in Christ. All outreach and fellowship stemmed from our relationship with Him."

TAU KAPPA OMEGA: CHARTERED SEPTEMBER 23, 1997

The motto of "Others Before Self" was the determination of the guys in brown and white, Tau Kappa Omega. Joel Barnes remarked, "This year we really tried to be more community and campus oriented. Each Thursday we held prayer meetings that were open to the campus and community. We also visited several area nursing homes." Their desire to provide for others was evident in the entertainment supplied by the organization. TKO Extreme Beach Extravaganza and 70s Night ensured evenings of intermingling with friends for students.

OMEGA ALPHA PHI: CHARTERED SPRING 1997

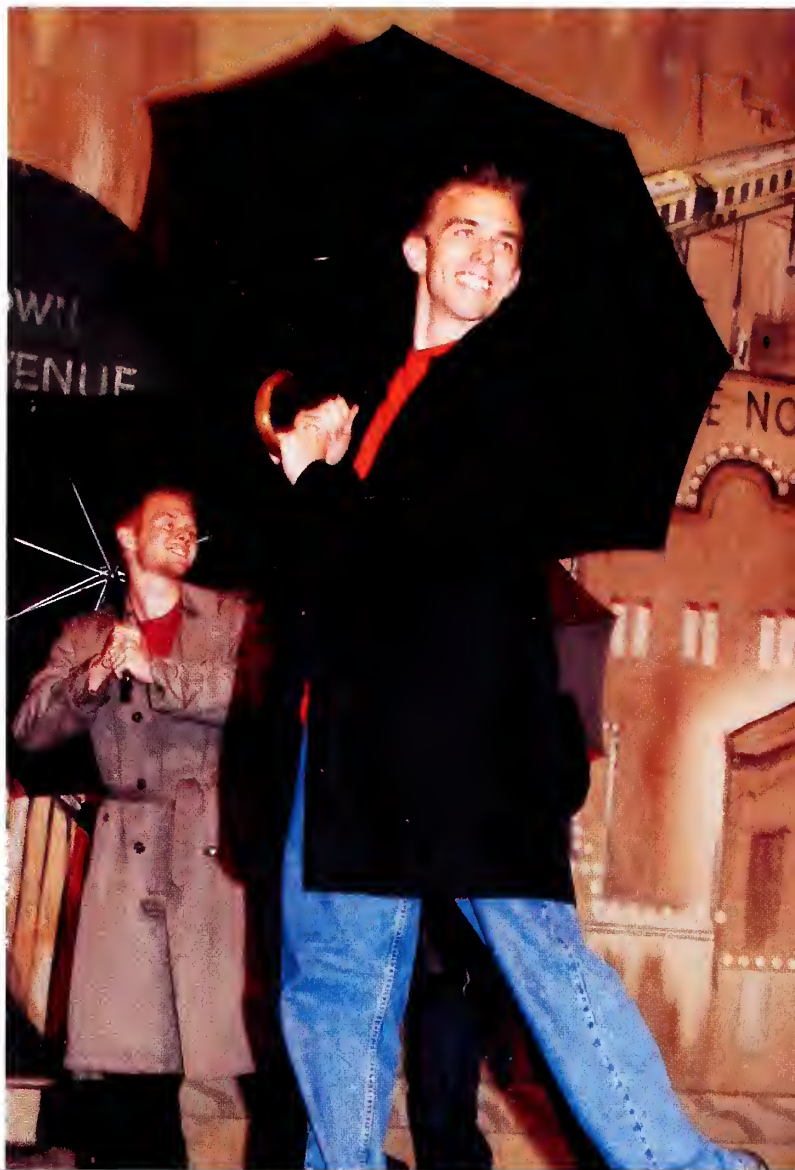

"Setting the Standard" was the goal of the ladies in Omega, dressed in jade and grey. The standard aspired to by members of the organization included hosting Snoball, a charity formal dedicated to raising proceeds for Mercy Ministries of America, a Christian women's rehabilitation home in Nashville, Tennessee. Omega also helped to maintain the standard of relationships with members of the opposite sex that many students hope to reach by providing an evening of the popular gameshow Singled Out, at which students had the chance to score free dates. •Copy compiled by Amanda Hutsell •Layout by Shereen Adams

Election 2000

George W. Bush selects Dick Cheney, former Wyoming representative, and former secretary of defense as his vice-presidential running mate on the Republican ticket.

The 2000 presidential election was in many ways decided by not just the voters but the courts. Five weeks after election day, the US Supreme Court blocked Al Gore's request to have disputed Florida ballots recounted. George W. Bush and Dick Cheney won the election after being awarded Florida's 25 electoral votes.

Antiquated voting methods in this age of technology threw the presidential election into turmoil. Punch card ballots, and the accompanying "Votomatic" system were first created in the 1960s. Disputed ballots had chads, or paper fragments hanging from the punch card that made it difficult for voting machines to read the ballots.

SPIRITUAL LIFE

SPIRITUAL LIFE CLUBS PROVIDED SPECIALIZED MINISTRY GROUPS IN WHICH STUDENTS COULD FIND A HOME. FROM SINGING THE GOSPEL TO SIGNING THE WORD OF GOD WITH HANDS, THE SPIRITUAL LIFE GROUPS UTILIZED EACH STUDENT'S GIFTS TO SPREAD THE GOOD NEWS.

TRAINING LEADERS FOR TODAY AND TOMORROW

Students with a heart to reach children for the Lord found a home in Youth Leaders Association. YLA trained students to effectively lead America's youth to the Lord and gave them outlets to apply it. YLA's members met regularly and brought in relevant speakers from the ministry to share. They expressed their passion for youth by using the Boys' and Girls' Club of Cleveland as their ministry outlet. "YLA would be in vain without the Boys' and Girls' Club because there would be no fruit. It is the heartbeat of this association," said junior Jay Masanotti. As students reached the hearts of children, the Lord was glorified and the leaders of today's youth affected the adults of tomorrow.

FEED MY PEOPLE

A knock on the door and an extended loaf of bread every Saturday morning was something that could be counted on by some Cleveland families. Missions Alive, a group of students with a passion for long and short-term missions, used Bread Ministry as their heartbeat. Every week they met the physical as well as spiritual needs of the people in lower income housing developments of Cleveland by providing loaves of bread and building relationships with them. The students also held a semester-long book drive for a Bible school in India and a public school in the Philippines. Missions Alive continued to "encourage the interest for missions in each others' lives through prayer and fellowship," said President Kelly Reed. "We keep and encourage the call of missions in our lives."

TAKING CHRISTIAN DRAMA ACROSS AMERICA

The Kingdom Players were about people, churches, travel, drama, service, and most of all, the ministry of the Lord. This small drama ministry group made up of three females and three males used exciting, humorous and dramatic skits based on the Bible to bring the Word to life. Directed by Dr. Sharon Carbaugh, the group traveled extensively to churches, rallies, and meetings to challenge people's faith and encourage them to follow Christ every day. Mike Baisden, junior member of Kingdom Players, said, "Kingdom Players is a drama ministry that focuses on the ministry and service, instead of dramas. It's a lot of fun and God blesses us in our travels. I love going to the churches, and meeting the people and being part of a ministry that is truly a ministry."

BIG PALS SHAPE THE FUTURE

Junior Paul Rankin and thirteen-year-old David from a single-parent home have been "pals" for over a year since being matched up by the Big Pal/Little Pal program. "We meet about once a week," said Rankin, "and I've had an opportunity to develop a close relationship with him and his family." The program pairs a Lee student with a child in need from the Cleveland area. Relationships are formed and Lee students place a tiny, but significant, mark on the future. Rankin said, "It's a good chance to impact a young person's life to the point that you can see a part of you in them. These kids are the future generation; if we can impact them, they can impact the world."

MINISTRY IN ALL PLACES

Thirteen students act out a human video on the streets of Daytona Beach, Florida, as thousands of Harley Davidson's roar around them. This was the scene when Acts of God took their ministry team to the annual Biketoberfest during Fall Break. Witnessing to thousands through skits, mimes, pieces for kids, human videos and more, the group was amazed at the wide range of opportunities that God gave them. "It's amazing to see how many doors have been opened. More and more churches and people are open to drama," said student coordinator Chris Wilson. Performing everywhere from prisons to Catholic masses, God worked through each actor to display Christ.

HANDS SPEAK THE GOSPEL OF TRUTH

Deaf Outreach spoke without words to a group who could not hear. Senior Brooke Parker said, "Deaf Outreach tried to bridge the gap between the hearing and the deaf." This group was taught sign language, used it to teach Sunday school, attend, participate in deaf churches, and convey the gospel through drama. "Deaf Outreach ministers to so many deaf people who are overlooked," said Parker. Deaf Outreach used their hands to bring the Word into a noiseless world.

FULFILLING THE GREAT COMMISSION

"Four churches, two days, thirty-five saved," said Stephanie Peveler about one weekend tour. God used the Ministerial Association to minister in a powerful way to fulfill the Great Commission. The music of worship and the truth of God could be heard every Monday night on the Lee campus, presented by the Ministerial Association. This group of passionate Lee students used a variety of music, drama, dance, and preaching to minister to the campus and the community. Using the callings and talents that God gave them, they found ministry outlets to advance the kingdom.

INVADING THE LOST

"Encore, encore," shouted 150 men after the Pioneers for Christ's worship band finished their last song, only to return to the stage to lead these men, from a North Carolina rehabilitation center, back into worship. During this weekend "Invasion," Lee's PFC students watched as "12 men were saved and 30 rededicated their lives," said sophomore Blaine Hamilton. These invasions were only one aspect of Pioneers for Christ. Students found a place to use their gifts and spark the passion of ministry in their life. Using what they have been given, these pioneers watched as "God multiplied out talents," said senior president Lisa Palagyi.

BAPTIST STUDENTS COME TOGETHER

"We're more like a family than anything else," said Jonathan Ownby. A place to fit in, to be with people with common goals, background, and heart. That is what everyone desires and the Baptist Student Fellowship provided for so many. Students participated in outreaches, mission trips, and community service, but more than anything it was a place to feel comfortable. "We all believe that it's all about Jesus," said Ownby. Common faith made up this true family in Christ.

RE-CENTERING AROUND CHRIST

After a wearing day, students walked in to the sounds of acoustic worship, speakers, good friends and a good time. Students who entered the doors of Fellowship of Christian Athlete's door found a place to focus on the Lord and fellowship with friends. This athletic group, who welcomed non-athletes, came together for a time of discipleship for each student. Senior Chas Smith said, "It's a time where athletes and other students can come together amidst the stressful daily activities and re-center our lives around Christ."

TRINITY COLLEGIATE FELLOWSHIP

Trinity Collegiate Fellowship was started in the fall semester of 2000. It consisted of a bible study sponsored by the local Trinity Presbyterian Church that met weekly to encourage reaching towards a more intimate personal relationship with God. In the words of Tiffany James, "The Bible study has helped me to understand grace."

COUNCIL FOR SPIRITUAL UNITY

The main goal of the Council for Spiritual Unity was to provide a common base for all Spiritual Life Clubs. They served to provide monetary and prayer support for all activities the various Spiritual Life Clubs desired to sponsor, as well as holding their own events such as canned food drives. •Copy by Meghan Hamilton •Layout by Shereen Adams

WORKING OUT

WHETHER BY LIFTING WEIGHTS IN THE REC CENTER, RUNNING ON OCOEE STREET, OR PLAYING SOME HOOPS WITH FRIENDS, STUDENTS AND STAFF FOUND WAYS TO STAY IN SHAPE AND LOOK GOOD.

YOU COULD TELL IT WAS A NEW CENTURY. New Year's in August. Students from freshmen to seniors, and even some staff and faculty were turning over a new (or not so new) leaf. After a summer of work and maybe even a little play, students were back to the books. But that wasn't all. Many students were back to a regular and rigorous workout schedule. Some were trying it out for the first time. Sure, the YMCA had a nice, new facility, but at Lee University students found just about all they needed in the rec center. Those who chose to get fit in less mundane ways stuck with intramurals or pick-up games out on the courts. Many students turned the perimeter of campus into an outdoor track. Whatever the case, students were looking more fit and energetic, which in turn helped them with their studies. . .maybe.

LEE'S DEVOS RECREATIONAL CENTER was a happening place for Lee students who were desiring to get in shape. Students could take advantage of the gym in many different ways. The rec center had racketball courts, treadmills, stationary bikes, elliptical machines, and steppers for those who wanted to burn some fat and build cardio endurance. Lee had two great weight rooms with machines and free weights for those students looking to tone up, or buff up.

The rec center also had a full basketball court that was always occupied with students playing intramurals or just having fun. Students participated in kickboxing classes and special toning classes in the aerobics room.

It seemed that no matter what time of day or night, the rec center was always full of students sweating and having fun. The rec center stayed open until 11:00 at night, but for those who didn't want to be overcome with the crowds, the best time to go was at the crack of dawn. The key thing to remember when going to the rec center was your Student I.D. •Copy by Connie Ballard •Layout by Shereen Adams

A BREATH OF FRESH AIR

student to get off one of the exercise machines in the DeVos Recreation Center? Feel like taking a jog to get some fresh air and stay healthy? Rather play a game of basketball than spend hours running on a machine? Many fitness advocates got their exercise outside of the rec center. For instance, many enjoyed jogging around campus or down Ocoee Street. The occasional pick-up game of basketball with friends was a great way to get the heart pumping. Many students would rather spend their time exercising outside, and several said that they simply preferred the open space and fresh air. Sophomore Ryan Terry said, "Exercising outside of the rec center is just a change of environment, and I know a lot of guys, like me, just like being outdoors." Also, some preferred getting in shape in a more casual social environment. •Copy by Josh Frazier

CELL PHONES

NECESSITY OR FASHION STATEMENT?

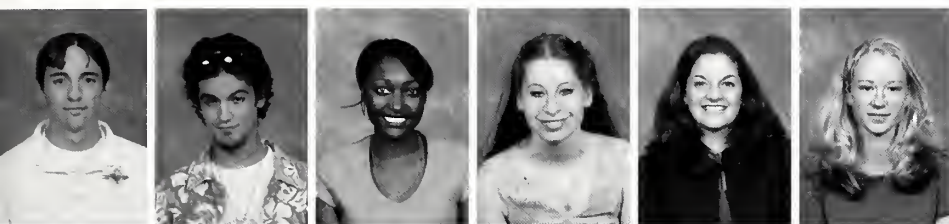

IT'S NO SECRET THAT CELL PHONES are everywhere on the Lee campus. It seems as if every student at Lee has one. Cell phones ring in class, meetings, and just about every other place you can think of. Why is this? Cell phones have been around for quite awhile, so why all of the sudden do so many students have them? Are they a necessity or merely a fashion statement?

Cori Croyle, a senior at Lee and an employee for Sprint PCS says, "Some people have cell phones just for a status symbol or to look cool, but for the most part they are so popular because they provide a security for people who travel or need to be easily accessible."

Cell phones have had such a boom also because of improvements made by the cellular phone companies. Because of such fierce competition, the cell phone companies are introducing exceptional monthly plans. It is now cheaper in some cases to pay a cellular phone bill rather than the long distance bill on a regular phone. New digital technology creates clearer connections without the static and loss of signals that occurred with older cellular phones. "Personally, I feel that cell phones are not just a fashion statement, but instead a smart investment." •Story by Connie Ballard

FEATHERS, FUR & SCALES

FROM THE COMMON TO THE UNCONVENTIONAL

SOME SAY DOGS ARE MAN'S BEST FRIEND, but many students considered other animals as their friends also.

Students had pets ranging from birds and cats to iguanas.

Phil Manning from Florida (land of crocodiles and good oranges) said, "I love reptiles, they are my favorite pets." He owns two iguanas and was considering buying a snake.

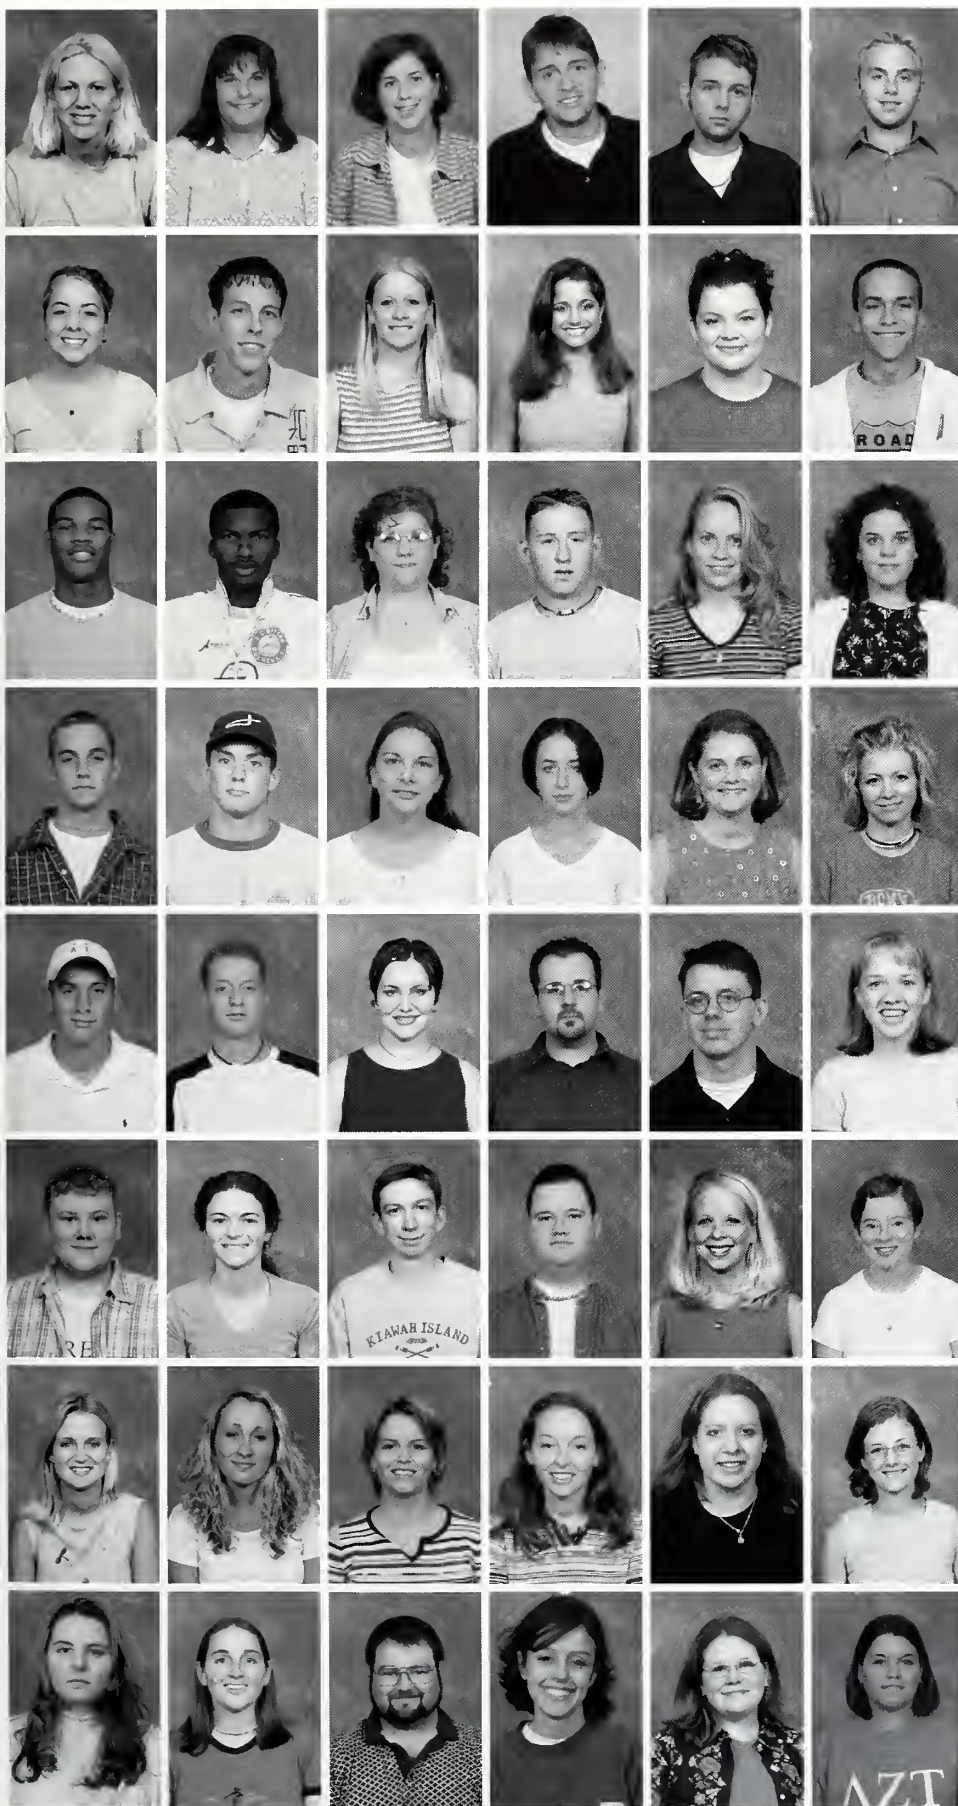

Other students had parakeets, dogs, electric eels, and others.

Especially during the summer and the springtime one could see some students jogging and at the same time, showing off their dogs. These joggers were the fortunate ones who in one way or another got to keep their pets. There were less fortunate pet owners that had to leave their pets home because they were not allowed to have pets in the dorms or apartment complexes. Christy Shaw said, "we owned our pet, but we had to give it to [my husband's mother] while we lived in Carroll Courts." Other students that lived off campus and were pet lovers made sure that they were allowed to have pets in their new apartment.

The favorite pet stores were Pet Smart in Chattanooga and the new Petco store in Cleveland. Those main places were where students went to do shopping for their pets and to get supplies for puppies, kitties and their Tweety Birds...or canaries. •Story by Adriana R. Salomone

BEATING THE GAME

BEFORE THE GAME BEATS YOU

AHHH...HIGH SCHOOL. THOSE GOOD OL' DAYS when studying consisted of an hour cram session during the class before the final exam. And the results were usually decent, because that was high school. Stuff facts into the brain; throw them back on the test, and kablam! An "A" at the end of the semester.

But then comes college, and the method is proven defective when a 40% is received on the first general Computer Skills 101 test! Panic strikes and a roommate is consulted! The succeeding days and nights blend together as one struggles to conform to the dreaded college studying method. Suddenly the library is a "cool" place to hang out. The janitorial staff at the Student Union discover first names as they must continually request evacuation procedures upon closing each night. Bed becomes an unfamiliar event, and directions to the dorm must be issued on paper because it is so often uninhabited due to all night study sessions. But do not fear fellow colleagues! Below is a list of study tips proven effective by millions of university students worldwide. But as always – results may vary! •Story by Courtney Rose Gutenschwager

WAYS TO ACE THE COLLEGE EXPERIENCE

- 1 Forget diet drinks. They do not pull through a 7:45 a.m. class or a midnight cram session. Coffee or Coke will become the drink of choice regardless of the hour.
- 2 Read the chapter? Are you kidding? That is what study guides were invented for!
- 3 Flash cards. People say they're only good in Kindergarten...shows how much they know.
- 4 Concentration. A loudly blaring movie DOES help!
- 5 Procrastination. The last day does not necessarily mean procrastination. Most people work best under pressure anyways.
- 6 The most important tip. They never PROVED sleeping on the textbook was not beneficial.

DORM DECORATING 101

ROOM DECORATION IN DORM LIFE

YOUR ASSIGNMENT: YOU WILL BE GIVEN SPACE THE size of a large bathroom, containing two desks, two dressers, and two beds. The walls are a dull tan and have no décor whatsoever. You must take this room and transform it into an abode that you can happily dwell in from August until May.

Impossible you say? Well, that is why we call it "Mission Almost Impossible." Best of Luck. Oh! One more element must be mentioned. You will have to accomplish this assignment with an assistant unknown to you at this time.

This person will help you scrape all available resources together for the supplies required and also add their sometimes unwanted opinions on the process.

To begin with, a room can be successfully decorated very easily. All it takes is a little personality, minimal creativity, and a bit of negotiating with the assistant. You can have one of the coolest hangouts on the floor. Just sit back and watch everyone turn green with envy over your job well done!

One more bit of advice before you are turned loose to launch your creative expedition. The only reason for failure in this mission is if no attempt is made. Any honest effort is a success in an assignment such as this one. The room should be an extension of your personality; therefore, it can be as vastly different yet equally amazing as the one next door. So now I commission you forth—proceed and show what you are capable of my children! •Story by Courtney Rose

A PLACE TO HANG OUT

AND LET IT ALL HANG OUT

IF YOU'RE LOOKING for a place to hang out, Cleveland does not offer much, but a few places do come to mind such as Panera Bread, Pathway, and Steak-n-Shake.

LeeAnn Deal enjoys Panera because, "it has a quiet environment in which one can study." Ben Kailing enjoys Steak-n-Shake because, "the chicken is heavenly and the french fries...divine." Both offer an atmosphere for fun conversation over hamburgers and fries or coffee and dessert. They are not only places to hang out, but for studying as well.

Some prefer the more lively hangouts in Chattanooga. A walk downtown and a trip to Greyfriar's is an evening where you're sure to see many other Lee students doing the same. •Story by Sarah Warfield

THE OLD TO THE NEW

PED MALL OR STUDENT UNION?

REMEMBER THE DAYS of the Pedestrian Mall? It was the hang out for Lee students. The only thing which kept people away was the rain. You could always count on one of the social clubs selling something: donuts, T-shirts, or candy. Since the new Student Union opened the only things that visits the ped mall are tumbleweeds.

Yes, the Student Union is great. It is the best facility for students on this campus but at the same time the ped mall is right up there. Most of the people I met were at the ped mall. It is perfect on a sunny day or even when it is overcast. The plus is that it is outside. Why stay cooped up in a building when all of the joy and wonderment of God's creations are outside? The battle between the pedestrian mall and the student union bring to mind an old phrase, "Make new friends but keep the old, one is silver and the other is gold." •Story by Victor Castillo

HOPEFULLY!

THE FIRST SEMESTER IN COLLEGE can feel like a different country. It feels like everyone speaks a different language, uses different gestures, even has different habits like eating, sleeping, and humor.

Mail is one of those few things like peanut butter covered apples, sardines on a perfectly designed pizza, or salt on watermelons that helps you keep your sanity by reminding of you home. The fact is that very few students receive "genuine" mail—for most people our age, when we think of mail, we think of our tiny cubbyhole boxes continuously filled with mail from people who know that we have no money yet still try to run us into more debt with things like credit card, advertisements, and books/cds of the month.

Courtney Rose Gutenschwager said, "Everyday I check my mail. When I see nothing in my tiny box, I feel depressed, hurt, and in anguish. Yet, I check again and again just in case. I even get excited over bills and fliers for missing children. Okay, maybe I am exaggerating, but I do like mail." •Story by Marian Daniel

INDEPENDENCE & CURFEW

COLLEGE HAS RULES TOO

PAGE 25 IN THE LEE UNIVERSITY Student Handbook states in two simple paragraphs the procedure well known as "freshman curfew." These 19 lines are the cause of many bitter and frustrated feelings in the freshman mind, because they symbolize a control factor that was suppose to diminish after leaving the protective parental realm. College was always thought to be similar to those old Saved By The Bell: College Year Editions, where one could habitually decide to run out for coffee at three in the morning with a friend who happened to drop in from the next dorm over. The idea was that when getting to college, we're free to run around 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

But as any Lee University Freshman can testify, this is certainly not the case. If caught out past midnight on the weekdays, or one o'clock on Friday or Saturday night, a dreaded "curfew vio" is issued. This conveniently lists the time curfew was checked and if not brought to the Resident Director within 24 hours with a creative and believable excuse, it could mean trouble.

Now it would seem the only complainers about this rule would be the violators. But often the girls in their beds at the proper time have a thing or two that needs to be added. They are awakened every night at 12:00 a.m. by a loud knock on their door or a key being rattled in the lock the Resident Assistant never seems to be able to quite work without an insane amount of noise. Maybe it is just a rule for the good of the students, but that sure doesn't help those nights when "studying" outside the dorm past 12 a.m. is a necessity. •Story by Courtney Rose Gutenschwager

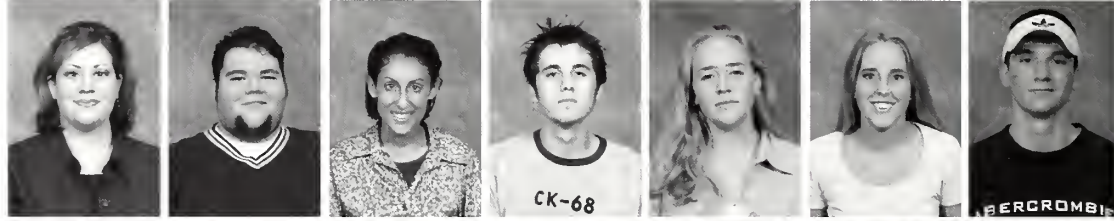

After finding the dorm doors locked, a student swipes his card in hopes of getting to his room. In order to enter the dorms after curfew, students must swipe their ID cards. •Photo by John Gray

WHERE TO SIT?

THE DILEMMA OF FINDING A GOOD SEAT IN CHAPEL

THE CONN CENTER AND THE DIXON CENTER were where chapel was held every Tuesday and Thursday. On Sundays, chapels were exclusively held in the Conn Center.

The seats in the Dixon Center were comfortable with spacious and wide spaces between rows while the seats in the Conn Center were closer and narrower. At times groups of students would save seats in the Conn Center and would use everything from sheets of paper to coats and thick notebooks. It can be annoying on occasion to get to a seat and discover those seats were saved. However, there were usually many other seating options. When students ran out of options in the main floor, the "obligated option" was the balcony.

Most students at Lee had a favorite spot in chapel. Being seated together created a sense of belonging. For example, there were sections for musicians, for Greek clubs, and other groups. Jamie Camps, who was in Lee Singers said, "I like to sit in the front left area of the main floor. That's where the singers usually sit." The basketball players have another story. Since they have long legs, they have to get the last row seats that allow plenty of room for legs. Greek clubs usually sat on the left back section of the main floor or in the balcony. Bible and Theology majors usually sat in the mid-front section. The International Student Fellowship also had its favorite spot on the right back area of the main floor.

Chapel was a valuable time for students to worship the Lord, going before Him with thanksgiving in their hearts and in unity. Chapel was a place where to learn from God's word and where the Holy Spirit led the lives of many students and called many into the ministry for His glory to be spread around the nations. •Story by Adriana R. Salomone

In the seat of her choice, Cynthia Lowa sits in the Dixon Center auditorium where students could attend chapel as an alternative to the Conn Center.

AMERICAN EAGLE

DON'T LEAVE CLEVELAND TO SHOP

CLEVELAND WAS GROWING AT A RAPID RATE when they added an AE in Bradley Square Mall. The question on the minds of many people was, Will the store go out of business because people are used to going to Chattanooga to shop? Here is what Jen, an employee at the new store, had to say, "AE is the hot place to go on Friday, Saturday, and Sunday evenings. It is booming with people every day of the week. The store's clothes change every two to three weeks to stay up to date. People are very helpful there and the store is a success! AE in Cleveland does as well in sales as the Chattanooga store! I think that says alot!" Diana said, "AE coming to Cleveland gives me hope that Abercrombie or the Limited might be on it's way to Cleveland." It reasonable to hope that other stores will come to Cleveland as a result of AE's success. It is possible that Clevelanders might not have to go to Chattanooga in a few years! •Story by Connie Ballard

THE SILVER SCREEN

THE FLICKS WE LOVE

IN THE DICTIONARY THE WORD MOVIE is 1) a motion picture, and 2) a theatre that shows motion pictures. But these definitions do not even come close to describing the experience had as one breathlessly takes his or her seat and prepares to launch into an adventure so different from the norm.

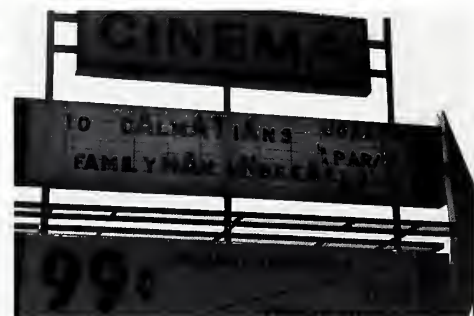

For college students, movies hold a particular thrill. They are what to do when one is not in class, sleeping, or eating. There are three methods generally followed to watch a movie in college. They are renting, visiting the 99 cent theater (or should we say $1.50 theater) with the last bit of cash on hand, or scrounging up a date to take you to the REAL theater where they have more than two movies playing at a time. But each method takes careful planning and precision to be worked out just right. •Story by Courtney Rose Gutenschwager

TIPS ON MOVIE VIEWING

- 1 When renting, be sure to bring along a friend to fill out a membership card so you don't have to pay the late fees incurred the semester before.
- 2 When going to the 99 cent theater on the weekends, keep in mind it costs more. They charge a hefty $1.50 for weekend shows.
- 3 When you do go to the real theater, resist blurting out to your date, "I can't believe this is so expensive!"

NEED A RIDE?

HITCH-HIKE WITH STUDENT SHUTTLE SERVICE

COMMUTER SERVICES PROVIDED A NEW OUTLET to keep students without vehicles from being restricted to mainland campus. The new program is a commuter shuttle that will take students from the Administration building to local businesses within Cleveland that are out of reach for those without a car. Those destinations included Wal-Mart, Bradley Square Mall, the Carmike Cinemas, or restaurants in the area.

This service was offered every half-hour on Tuesdays from 6:30 p.m. to 9:00 p.m. and on Fridays from 6:30 p.m. to 10:00 p.m. Jean Weche commented that it is, "good for the fact that you can't go anywhere unless you find another person who will take you. Every week I have to borrow a ride from my friends." Many of the same sentiments towards commuting through Cleveland were shared by fellow classmates, especially international students.

Marsha Brantley, Director of Commuter Services, said, "This has been a long time coming, and we're pleased to be able to provide this service to students without cars to help them enjoy their Lee experience a little more." •Story by Andrea Cummins

The shuttle service ran Tuesday and Thursday evenings to Walmart and Bradley Square Mall. •Photo by John Gray

WAL-MART

ONE STOP SHOPPING

IT SEEMS THE WHOLE LEE UNIVERSITY

campus is addicted to Wal-Mart! People can do blue bag watching anytime because everyday someone can be seen carrying them. But some aren't such big fans such as Marcus Adams said, "I don't like it, because it takes so long to even get to the building for the car." While many prefer a quick stop, some spend countless hours going through each department. For many, there is no such thing as a quick trip to Wal-Mart.

Wal-Mart has become a weekly event in the norm of dorm life. The fun is buying junk food mom would hate to see us eat and always stocking up on stuff not needed. Some enjoy Wal-Mart so much that they purposely "forget" something just so they can go back to get it.

Why do we enjoy shopping there so much? Does life in the "Lee Bubble" make us that hungry for something different? Who knows, but one thing is for sure – as long as there is a Wal-Mart there will always be Lee students shopping there. •Story by Sarah Warfield

The Wal-Mart sign can be seen day and night from Keith Street.

BEFORE THE HOUSE

THERE WAS THE PRAYER HOUSE

MATHEW COLBY AND SHAUN THOMAS, WHO LIVED in the House when it was considered Auxiliary Housing, always prayed their house would be used to support students on the campus. While at Mount Olive Central, the pastor called the church to have a 40 day fast. Immediately, Mathew Colby felt that he should lead a group prayer fast, which was confirmed at the same time to Michelle Hess, his best friend, and Shaun Thomas.

After receiving permission from the RD to have females in the house, whoever wanted to pray or be prayed for would come from 10 p.m. until curfew. Word got around, and the house became known as the "Prayer House." At times the house would be so full that people were unable to move around, while at other times, people could be seen going and leaving throughout prayer time.

Now that the house is used for activities such as alternative chapel, Mathew Colby and Shaun Thomas are roommates who live off campus in an apartment over the laundry mat on Parker and Central. Even through the difficulties of living off campus, Mathew learned that his "prayer experience was the closest he felt to God and learned how important it was to have a personal relationship with the Lord." The saying says prayer changes things; according to Mathew, "I say that prayer changes people and people change things." •Story by Marian Daniel

THE MEAL PLAN

IT'S CALLED GOURMET

THE MEAL PLAN. FIVE MONTHS BEFORE SCHOOL started about half of the freshman population did not have a clue as to just what those three words would come to mean in their college years. Daily multiple trips to the cafeteria have become routine. The process has been repeated so often, that it could most likely be acted in a comatose state, as those ambitious students who eat previous to their 7:45 a.m. class could testify!

But if one flips back to those beginning days in the Deacon Jones Dining Hall, an initial impression could be quite amusing as in this freshman's account of "The First Supper."

"I guess I spotted the dining hall so easily at first because all the other freshman seemed to be heading in that general direction. At about 5:00 p.m. I entered and started to walk to the salad bar when suddenly I was surrounded by three people in green shirts with the word "Marriott" stitched on it. They said I needed to show my student identification to eat here, and I fumbled around my pocket, as the line in front of the identification-scanning machine was growing longer by the second. I grabbed my card back and followed the crowd towards the bright trays and silverware. As I neared the hot food line, I was happy to observe we were having turkey wraps! My favorite! I got my wrap and drink, than headed up to the second level to sit with the only friend I had at the time, my roommate. Suddenly, tragedy struck... I tripped up the step and my food flew. Deflated, I picked up my tray and walked to the trash. Forgetting to separate my silverware and paper products from the other articles, I meekly concluded my meal plan experience and headed to my next class."

Though not many people have such a devastating experience as this poor soul, most students have their own close encounter with the meal plan. •Story by Courtney Rose Gutenschwager

Stranger Things Have Happened...

You're probably wondering why this is here in the middle of the student portrait section. Just as it occasionally snows in Cleveland, things occasionally go awry with the yearbook. When we matched the number of students enrolled with the number of pictures, we realized we missed a couple of hundred of you. We wanted everyone to be included in the student portraits so if we missed getting your picture, we found one! We know they're not the best of quality, but we didn't want to miss your darling face. So get ready for the grainy and the blurry because here they come...

PAUL CONN HAS BEEN THE PRESIDENT of Lee University since 1986, but Lee has been a major part of his life since his childhood days in Cleveland, when he used to deliver newspapers along Ocoee Street. Dr. Conn's father, Charles W. Conn, was also president of Lee College for many years.

The 2000-2001 school year was a banner year for Lee University under the leadership of Dr. Paul Conn and his executive office team. Not only did Lee increase its enrollment to more than 3,000 students, but the physical size of the campus also grew with the addition of Storms Hall and The Paul Conn Student Union. In addition, the largest and most successful fund-raising campaign in university history, the Open Door Campaign, was completed.

The crowning achievement of the year for many was the opening of the 70-foot tall, 30,000 square foot Paul Conn Student Union Building, thanks in part to donations from many local businesses and organizations. •Story by Dr. Matthew Melton •Layout by Rachel Land

DEAN OF THE COLLEGE OF ARTS AND SCIENCES, DR. DEWAYNE THOMPSON, was ever so humble. With five departments reporting directly to him, he chose to elevate those with whom he worked. He stressed "they work as a team." "Their goal," he said, "is to focus on the students of Lee University and their overall well-being and to see that they are well served."

The principle of serving others seems to be the secret of Thompson's success and has governed most of his life. Thompson observed firsthand this principle in his father who was a Church of God minister.

How did Thompson end up at Lee University? While finishing his undergraduate degree at Lee College, he was often teased by friends who said that he would return to Lee and teach. He insisted that he would not return, saying, "teachers do not make enough money." Later, he discovered that he was, indeed, called to Lee University.

Out of all his accomplishments, he counts his greatest as, "Marrying my wife." He and his wife Kathy have two daughters, Aimee and Lauren.

He does have several goals. "I would like to see more programs developed in the Arts and Sciences department, and I want to do more International traveling with my family," Thompson said. Smiling boyishly he added, "And I want to completely restore my 67 GTO." •Story by Autumn Brown

Carolyn Dirksen Vice President of Academic Affairs

NO STRANGER TO THE LEE UNIVERSITY campus, Dr. Carolyn Dirksen has been serving both the faculty and the student body for over thirty years. Initially employed as an English teacher in 1968 and later as Assistant Vice President of Academics, Dirksen became the Vice President for Academic Affairs in 2000. Her duties included responsibility for all academic programs, faculty development, faculty evaluation and course curriculum. More specifically, her job entailed overseeing graduate and undergraduate programs, evaluating, hiring, firing, and adding faculty members in all departments, and assessing and adding courses.

After being named Vice President for Academic Affairs, Dirksen was only able to teach one class per semester. However, she still attempted to maintain relationships with both her former and her present students. Dirksen said, "I really miss the constant interaction with students...When I used to teach freshman composition I would see a student five or six more times in my classroom before they would graduate."

Although her new position included making difficult decisions every day, Dirksen explained, "I enjoy any kind of interaction with the faculty; curriculum and faculty development are really rewarding. I really think my job is finding resources that help the faculty do what they do best."

With the student body growing to more than 3,300, Dirksen and her staff began preparing for the future. "We have several areas that we are developing, including the religion department, a recreation program as a part of the P.E. major, sports medicine and the global studies abroad program," noted Dirksen. She also recognized Lee's accomplishment of being ranked in the top ten in the nation for schools its size in study abroad opportunities. Lee offered 17 study abroad programs.

Since coming to Lee, Dirksen and her husband Dr. Murl Dirksen had been active in mission work. She and her husband had lived and taught in China for two years, working with the English Language Institute of China. Dirksen continued to travel through the years, consulting, teaching and setting up curriculum in such countries as Laos, Cambodia and North Korea. •Story by Seth Hankee •Layout by Tiffany Gause

Vice President for Institutional Advancement

WHILE STUDENTS WORRY ABOUT exams and run from class to class, Vice President Dale Goff's office of Institutional Advancement is busy making Lee University the best it can be for the world off campus. Many students don't know it, but much of what we do here depends directly on Mr. Goff and his hardworking staff. Areas related specifically to external funding, scholarships and those ever-rising dorms come under his office.

Under Institutional Advancement you will find the offices of Alumni Relations, Church Relations, Grants, Development, Financial Aid, Special Projects and Public Information.

Mr. Goff is a Lee alumnus with an M.S. from the University of Tennessee. Before joining the Lee staff in 1987, he worked in public school administration in middle and east Tennessee. •Story by Dr. Matthew Melton •Layout by Tiffany Gause

David M. Painter

Vice President of Business and Finance

MONEY AND TUITION, CHIK-FILA AND PIZZA HUT. David Painter was involved in each of these areas. Painter is the Vice President of Business and Finance.

Tuition questions? Painter was the man in charge of keeping tuition rates so low. Lee University actually had lower tuition rates than other schools of its kind. Painter revealed the secret, "Our salaries are lower than normal." That was not the only reason, however. Painter said, "The General Headquarters of our denomination gives a certain percentage of their budget to help the school. . .a very substantial amount...almost $1,000 per student."

He also worked with the food services and vending. Since Painter was in charge of the food services, he had a voice over what businesses to bring to campus.

Students were not very familiar with Painter because he was not seen around campus very much. Of his position, Painter said, "It's a frontline job," meaning that he could not be around as much as he wanted to be. Before becoming Vice President of Business and Finance, Painter served as Comptroller for the school. He explained, "Basically, the comptroller would be the chief accountant."

Money matters were not the only thing on Painter's agenda. On occasion, he dined in the Paul Conn Student Union. Chik-Fil-A was one of his favorites.

After a hard day's work dealing with numbers and budgets, does Painter manage the checkbook at home? "My wife handles that pretty well," said Painter. In the spare time he manages to wrangle up, Painter loves to play golf and racquetball. He often plays in the DeVos Recreation Center on campus. At home, he likes to relax with his wife Mary. •Story & Layout by Tiffany Gause

Gary Ray

Vice President for Enrollment Management

"CAN YOU TAKE ME HIGHER" ARE THE lyrics to a popular song by the band Creed. Gary Ray, the Vice President of Enrollment Management, worked persistently to bring Lee University to a higher place. Ray explained, "Enrollment Management's primary purpose is to improve student services by integrating technology." Lee University worked diligently to improve the technology here by visiting other universities to gather ideas for advancement. One of the primary goals was to take the best of each school's ideas and come up with something better.

Ray finds his role at Lee University to be exciting and rewarding. His favorite thing about Lee is the energy and vitality of the people, from Dr. Conn down through the freshmen. Ray's favorite day of the year is when the new freshmen arrive. He looks out the window of the Admissions Office and sees the excitement of the new students. He enjoys watching the fathers unloading the over-packed cars, and carrying armfuls of stuff into the dorms. Ray sees the first day of school as a sign of God's faithfulness for making it possible for the new freshmen to come to Lee University. Ray said that the best part of his job is hearing the stories of prospective students and then learning how God brought them to Lee.

Although Ray works extremely hard to improve Lee University's atmosphere, he still makes his family the primary focus of his life. His wife Anita is the Director of Human Resources. His son, Kevin, has plans to start a Christian rock band, and his daughter, Jessica, hopes to come to Lee to study television and journalism. Outside of work and his family, Ray's hobbies include reading and oil painting. He would like to learn to speak Spanish. Ray's philosophy is to try something new each year. He is a very passionate person, truly dedicated to improving life at Lee University. "We care from the very first day of registration through the last alumni. We want to serve them with caring and efficiency," said Ray. Lee's future looked promising with faculty and administration as dedicated as Gary Ray in bringing Lee University to a higher level.

BEHAVIORAL & SOCIAL SCIENCES

THE GOAL OF THE DEPARTMENT OF BEHAVIORAL & Social Sciences was to educate the total person for both career and service. The faculty in the department desired to prepare Christian professionals who could show the love of Christ in their chosen field as well as care for those less fortunate.

The Department of Behavioral and Social Sciences offered majors in History, Human Development, Psychology, Political Science and Sociology. The Department sponsors several academic clubs including Kappa Lambda Iota, Alpha Kappa Delta, Psi Chi, Phi Delta Psi, The Sociology Club, and the Society for Law and Justice.

Murl Dirksen served as the chair of the Behavioral and Social Sciences Department. He arrived at Lee in 1972. Dirksen received the Excellence in Teaching Award in 1991 and the Excellence in Scholarship Award in 1993. He is the Cultural Anthropologist on the Karak Plateau Project in central Jordan; he also spent a year in China at Henan University in the late eighties and is a member of the Hopi Mission School Foundation Board. Dirksen and his wife Carolyn, Vice President of Academic Affairs, have a daughter named Sara. For free time, he enjoys skiing, swimming, and playing tennis. •Story by Jennifer Duggan

BUSINESS

THE DEPARTMENT OF BUSINESS CONTINUES its legacy of achievement and excellence this year, drawing from past successes and boldly marching into the new global marketplace with vision and conviction.

Each year, students participate in internships, international programs, and state and national competitions. In the 2000-2001 school year, the Department of Business provided internships for 45-50 juniors and seniors to help prepare them for the professional business world. In May, 30 students participated in international study opportunities in both Moscow and Paraguay. Some students also participated in Phi Beta Lambda, the Business Club.

Chair of the Department of Business, Evaline Echols, has been at Lee since 1957. Although she was busy and very involved, Echols still found time for everyone. "The thing that I enjoy the most is my contact with the students and the faculty," noted Echols. She looked to the future, predicting that The Department of Business would become a fully functioning School of Business, separate from the College of Arts and Sciences. In addition, Echols noted, "We're planning a minor in International Business in the next two years and eventually a major in the next five years."

Regardless of the change or the challenge, the Department of Business was resolute in its commitment to prepare men and women for positions of leadership by imparting to them the ethical and philosophical principles upon which the society and the economy rest and by equipping them with the knowledge and skills needed to assume useful places in business, government, the teaching profession, and the community at large.

COMMUNICATION & THE ARTS

COMMUNICATION IS A GROWING FIELD, and a lot of people are heading toward it. The Department of Communication and the Arts is dedicated to helping students find their niche. Dr. Melton, chair of the department, said, "A degree in Communication will help students maximize their options for professional life after college. Many corporations in our information age are looking for good communicators."

The department offered a wide variety of majors from which to choose, from a B.A. in Communication with a drama emphasis, to a B.S. in Telecommunication. The Department of Communications sponsors the school newspaper, the Lee Collegian, the yearbook, Vindagua, the video yearbook, the Art Club, and Lambda Pi Eta, the Communication Honor Society.

Melton and the other professors worked hard to provide the best atmosphere to give the students a feel of what it was like in the real field. Melton has an M.A. in Journalism and a Ph D. in Rhetoric. In addition to that, he is the director of student media, which includes the Lee Collegian (newspaper) and the Vindagua (Yearbook).

"We think we have the funnest major at Lee," Dr. Melton admitted with a grin. With all these great majors and professors who love the field, it was a wonder why everyone else was not a Communication major. •Story & Layout by Tiffany Gause

ENGLISH & MODERN FOREIGN LANGUAGES

THE DEPARTMENT OF ENGLISH AND MODERN Foreign Languages at Lee University had the primary mission of preparing students for vocations that emphasize the verbal arts. In addition to comprehensive instruction on Lee University's campus, opportunities to study abroad in France and South America enticed students to earn foreign language credits while immersed in the language and culture. Chair of the department, Dr. Jean Eledge, said, "We are proud of the programs, the courses, and the quality of instruction offered in this department, and we look forward to continuing to meet the challenges of serving each student in his or her...study at Lee."

What was truly distinctive about this group of faculty was the way they went the extra mile to help students, both in and out of the class setting.

The department sponsors several academic clubs including Sigma Tau Delta (the English Honor Society), Le Cercle Francais, Sigma Delta Pi (the Spanish Honor Society), as well as the school's literary magazine, The Lee Review.

Eledge taught French for several years at Cleveland High School before joining the Lee University faculty in 1990. She received the Lee Excellence in Teaching Award in 1995. She has not only been an outstanding professor, but she has also served as the Director of Educational Field Experience.

Eledge enjoys reading and speaking on effective teaching practices. Outside of the classroom, she enjoys music and sports. Eledge and her husband Bill have a son, Eric. •Story by Rachel Land •Layout by Tiffany Gause

Mauldin has taught on all levels of the education track. "I loved teaching all levels, but I like teaching college level the best." However, that was not all that she had under her belt. She had also been a chemist and a director of a preschool. Of her experiences, she said, "Out of all the jobs I've had, I've enjoyed classroom teaching the most."

Her love for the classroom was evident through the countless awards she had been given for her teaching abilities. She received the Lee University Excellence in Teaching Award in 1996. She also received the Mellon Fellowship in the summers of 1995 and 1996. Mrs. Mauldin was named in Who's Who Among American Teachers (1996).

Mauldin was more than excited about helping students in their course of discovery in the science and math field. HEALTH & PERFORMANCE

THE DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH AND Human Performance worked to prepare students for graduate school and for careers as Physical Education teachers and other fitness/wellness professions. The program emphasized knowledge of the human body, self care, and motivational techniques for leading a healthy and productive life.

The department chair for Health and Human Performance, Dr. Mark Wickam, is no stranger to health and fitness. He received his B.S. from Lee College, and he has been part of the faculty at Lee since 1987. He has served Lee not only in the classroom, but also on the coaching staff as the men's tennis coach. Alongside the other department faculty, Wickam teaches classes such as Kinesiology, Physiology of Exercise, Cardiovascular Health, and Exercise Testing and Prescription. •Story by Rachel Land

Dr. Deborah Murray

Teachers are the key to American education and are consequently integral to the future of the country and the world. For this responsibility, they must be prepared to discern wisely, to think creatively, to teach effectively, and to demonstrate the qualities of integrity and love. Under the direction of the Dean, Dr. Debbie Murray, the College of Education sought to prepare students to be these kind of classroom teachers. Murray was a Lee College undergraduate, and she has been a faculty member since 1980. In 1997 she received the Alumnus of the Year award from the Department of Natural Sciences and Mathematics. Besides singing, she enjoys sports and puzzles, and she assists her husband Danny Murray with the Voices of Lee. She and Danny have four children: Kristen, Lauren, Morgan, and Britt.

THE HELEN DEVOS COLLEGE OF EDUCATION recently divided into two separate departments, the Department of Teaching and Learning and the Department of Health and Performance. Assistant Dean of the College of Education Pamela Browning found herself with a new title. She became Chairperson of the Department of Teaching and Learning. Browning said that being a chairperson is something she has "liked, and grown into," and that it has "gotten less intimidating and more natural over time." Mrs. Browning had high expectations for the new department. She hoped to see continued improvement of the program, and she expected the college to produce quality teachers and expose those teachers to diversity.

Browning received her bachelor's degree from

Lee College. From there she went on to receive her Master of Arts from University of South Florida, and her Ph.D from University of Tennessee at Knoxville. Browning taught kindergarten for more than a decade before she applied to Lee University again, this time for a job. Mrs. Browning has been teaching at Lee University for twelve years. Her area of specialty is Kindergarten/Primary Education, and she is currently interested in researching Literacy Instruction. She was the recipient of the prestigious Lee University Excellence in Teaching Award in 1992.

SCHOOL OF MUSIC

THE SCHOOL OF MUSIC AT LEE UNIVERSITY IS one of the best music programs in the nation. The faculty in the school believe people should have fun in the process of making music. They feel that if students have this kind of attitude, they can look forward to a rewarding career in music. Students majoring in music have the option of receiving a B.A. with Church Emphasis, a B.A. with Applied Study emphasis, or a B.A. in Music Education.

The Dean of the School of Music is Dr. Walt Mauldin. Mauldin graduated from Lee College's music department. After 22 years as a local church music minister in West Palm Beach, Florida, Mauldin was recruited to the Lee University faculty. He now teaches various undergraduate and graduate courses. His specialty, however, is choral conducting. He is currently the director of Lee Singers. Mauldin and the Lee Singers have been all over the country and the world. In May 2001, they ministered in South Africa. Mauldin said, "This year is going great. Everywhere we go people are being led to Christ."

Mauldin, originally from Rayston, Georgia, lives with his wife, Penny Mauldin and their two sons, Jeremy and Ryan. He enjoys scuba diving, boating, weight lifting, water skiing, and snow skiing. •Story by Justin Mullins •Layout by Tiffany Gause

NATIONAL MUSIC HONOR SOCIETY ARRIVED at Lee: Lee University's music department was proud to be named a Pi Kappa Lambda chapter in the spring semester of 2001. Pi Kappa Lambda is a nationally recognized music honor society that has one of the highest standards in the nation. After becoming a member in the National Association for the Society of Music (NASM) in November of 1999, Lee University then went on to apply for a Pi Kappa Lambda charter. After much persistence, Lee University was finally approved to commence a charter in December 2000.

Dr. Walt Mauldin, Dean of Music at Lee, had previous experience as a member of Pi Kappa Lambda at the University of Miami in Florida.

April 10 of this year saw the formal institution of the charter by Pi Kappa Lambda where juniors and seniors pursuing music as their major were inducted. It was projected by Dr. Mauldin that twenty to twenty-five music majors ranging in the upper ten percent of grade point averages were to be selected.

Dr. Mauldin said, "We have been coming a long way and this is good because we will be able to join the top ranks of other prestigious institutions." Pi Kappa Lambda will become an avenue through which talented musicians can be heard and be rewarded with a sure career in the music arena.

CHRISTIAN MINISTRIES

IN THE 2000-2001 SCHOOL YEAR, THE SCHOOL OF Religion helped to train more than 400 students. Newly divided into two separate departments, the Department of Christian Ministries and the Department of Theology, the School of Religion provided ministerial training for men and women for part-time or full-time work. The goal of the Department of Christian Ministries was to prepare students for Christian service as laymen or as ministers. This task was achieved under the anointing of the Holy Spirit and from a Pentecostal perspective. Majors in the new Department of Christian Ministries include Pastoral Ministries, Christian Education, and Intercultural Studies. The Dean of the School of Religion, Dr. Jerome Boone, adopted the additional title as the chair for the new Department of Christian Ministries.

Boone earned his Doctorate in Ministry from Columbia Theological Seminary and began teaching at Lee in 1976. He taught Old Testament and New Testament Survey classes and Old Testament book studies, as well as Old Testament Theology and Christian Formation. His research interests lay in the area of Old Testament Prophets. Boone received the Excellence in Teaching Award in 1982 for his outstanding classroom performance. Boone received the Lee faculty Excellence in Scholarship Award in 1997 and an ACA Research Grant, which attested to his continuous research and publication. On a personal note, Dr. Boone and his wife Sandi have two children, Darla and David. He enjoys reading, hiking, camping, and traveling. •Story by Rachel Land •Layout by Tiffany Gause

THEOLOGY

LEE UNIVERSITY'S NEW DEPARTMENT OF THEOLOGY sought to enable all graduates to be conversant in the Christian faith and to begin integrating the Christian faith in all aspects of their lives and vocations. The faculty in the School of Religion was rich in both ministry experience and academic training. The professors in the Department of Theology taught students to interpret and understand the Word of God in part and in whole. Students in the department studied doctrines based on Scripture and related it to the contemporary setting of church and society. Students majoring in Bible and Theology were required to take Greek for the purpose of better understanding the author's original expression in the Bible.

Chair of the Department of Theology, Dr. Terry Cross taught students theology and philosophy. Cross graduated from Lee College in 1978, earning his first of five degrees. He later received a Master of Arts in Church History and a Master of Divinity in Theology from Ashland Theological Seminary. He attended Princeton Theological Seminary, where he received a Master of Theology. Cross completed his doctoral work at Princeton in Systematic Theology. Prior to his work at Lee, Cross was a pastor for twelve years and a high school teacher of Latin and history. Cross came to Lee University in 1997. Since then, he has divided his time between teaching and administrative duties. In Fall 2000, he directed the new graduate programs in Religion as three new master's degrees were inaugurated.

Cross has been listed in Who's Who Among American Teachers and was awarded the Excellence in Teaching Award at Lee University in May 2000. Cross and his wife Linda have one daughter, Tara. Cross enjoys genealogy, Latin, golf, tennis, and racquetball. •Story by Rachel Land •Layout by Tiffany Gause
